New Storm Intensifies as Floods Hit New Orleans

Gulf Area Scene Of Near Chaos; Warnings Posted Again in Florida

New Orleans, Sept. 21 (AP)—Even as floods added to this city's woes and the hurricane-battered Gulf Coast counted its dead—probably around 70 and less than feared—a second tropical disturbance was rising in the devil's cauldron of the Caribbean.

This new disturbance 330 miles south of Miami is not yet classified by the Weather Bureau as a hurricane, but, ominously, the forecasters reported a definite circulation of 40 to 50-mile winds—the first step in spawning a big blow.

The new storm sent winds of 50 miles per hour over Grand Cayman Island, indicating that its intensity is increasing, but the Weather Bureau added there was no well-defined storm center. The course of the storm was northwestward at about 10 miles per hour.

Storm Warnings

Storm warnings appeared from Palm Beach to Key West. Wearily the south Florida region took note of the disturbance while cleaning up from Wednesday's hurricane, which whipped across the lower peninsula leaving eight dead and damage estimated to 30 million dollars.

This was the same storm which scurried into the Gulf of Mexico and swung northward to beat fiercely at the Gulf Coast from Biloxi, Miss., to New Orleans.

That section of the coast still is a scene bordering on cahos. Devastation, particularly in Mississippi, is everywhere and accurate estimates of death and damage are difficult.

Brig. Gen. William P. Wilson of the Mississippi National Guard directing rescue and rehabilitaton crews, said there were many conflicting and false reports as to the number of dead and injured.

A survey by two Associated Press reporters, almost isolated on the Mississippi coast, late today confirmed 20 dead. Previously reports of deaths in the same area had run as high as 60.

Wind Now Favorable

In New Orleans flood waters began creeping higher and this afternoon Deputy Sheriff John Williams said Lake Pontchartrain was rising slowly. Since 2 a. m. it had lapped upward four inches. Highway connections between New Orleans and Baton Rouge were closed by the flood.

There was an encouraging note, however, from the New Orleans Weather Bureau, which said the wind had shifted to southwesterly and should alleviate conditions in the flooded area.

The bureau explained that these winds would drive water from Lakes Pontchartrain and Borgne into the gulf or adjacent waters and restore the lakes to normal levels.

Meanwhile, looting was reported from several points.

At Bay St. Louis, Miss., guards were posted with "shoot to kill" orders to curb looting.

Sheriff Frank J. Clancy of Jefferson Parish, La., reported today that widespread looting occurred in the Metairie section and he had added extra deputies to cope with it.

Sheriff Clancy said that of 25,000 people in the region, 15,000 live in houses now surrounded by water.

The flood was caused by the hurricane winds which forced high tides into Lake Borgne, an inlet to the gulf, and into adjoining Lake Ponchartrain. Strong easterly winds have kept the water levels high, but if the winds abate the lake level will drop and allow the flood waters to drain back into the gulf.

Owners of small boats today planned a mass attempt to rescue between 50 and 250 refugees reported stranded on a marshy neck of land between the two lakes.

Pass Christian, Miss., cut off for two days when gusts up to 100 miles an hour struck the little city, reported early today that damage was severe but that no lives were known to have been lost. All roads were blocked by debris until late last night when a back road was opened.

Crime Increase Here Tops All Cities of Size

FBI Report Puts Capital Second in Count of Murders

Washington had the most spectacular increase in crime of any city of comparable size in the United States during the first six months of this year.

At the same time, the Nation's Capital moved to the top of the list among cities of its population grouping in the number of cases of aggravated assault, burglary and petty theft.

These conclusions are based on a report, released yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which lists incidence of crime in all major cities of the United States during the first six months of this year.

A comparison of FBI crime reports for the same January-June period last year shows Washington was second from the top among cities of its population group in number of murders; fourth in number of robberies; fourth in number of cases of aggravated assault; fourth in number of burglaries; second in number of grand larcenies and fourth in number of petty thefts reported.

The FBI report on Washington crime statistics was prepared by agents who were asked by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, to survey the District's

Editor Announces New Waterwagon After Recent Fall

Waupun, Wis., Sept. 21 (AP).—Editor George W. Greene of the Waupun News-Leader publicly climbed aboard the waterwagon two years ago.

In an editorial he declared solemnly:

"Since I seem unable to be moderate, the only answer seems to be to abstain entirely."

Last week he fell off.

This week's editorial said:

"Worse things have been hushed up.

"But we hate hypocrisy.

"We'd rather be an honest bum, if necessary, than a fake pillar of the community.

"So we aren't saying we had a nervous breakdown, although we're entitled to one.

"All we can say is that we are riding on a better wagon, designed for long wear."

School Estimates

Budget Shows Concern for Children

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's proposed 32-million-dollar school budget for the year starting next July 1 is a typewritten document, an inch and a quarter thick.

Through the chilly figures runs an undercurrent of warm concern for the thousands of District school children who are going back to their classes today.

Here are some examples:

The Board of Education wants $6500 so that 11 physically handicapped children can be taken daily from their homes to one of the four schools set up to serve them, and back again. They live too far from the present routes now to be given this service.

School heads want to spend $22,000 to start a five-year noise-reduction program in the older schools—and it's not aimed at telling the kids to keep quiet. The program calls for acoustical treatment of rooms where noise is greatest, like shops, typing classes, cafeterias and gymnasiums.

Lip-Reading Teachers

The budget calls for three lip-reading teachers for the white schools, and three more for the Negro schools, at a salary of $2700 each. Two of the teachers would serve shut-in pupils.

Also included is $15,000 to start a three-year project for installing inclined floors in the auditoriums at Macfarland, Stuart and Paul junior high schools. One floor would be built each year, Macfarland would be first.

Another $20,400 is asked to install clock and bell systems in 50 elementary schools that have none now and in 48 others where the systems are now inadequate. The program would take six years.

Other details of what the budget estimates propose for individual schools follow:

Denham Holds Firm to Ruling On Affidavit

Insists He's Right; AFL Threatened by Union Withdrawals

Unmoved by union fears, General Counsel Robert N. Denham of the National Labor Relations Board said yesterday he would stand by his ruling that national labor leaders must sign anti-Communist pledges if affiliated unions want to do business with the board.

"It might be very convenient to rewrite the Taft-Hartley labor law," he said, "but that's not my privilege."

The union contention is that the provision which requires union leaders to certify that do not support communism applies to leaders of individual unions and their locals. Denham has ruled that unless all officers of the AFL and the CIO sign the pledge, no affiliated union can use NRLB machinery for settling disputes with management.

AFL May Lose Members

Some AFL leaders have appealed to the board to reverse its counsel's decision, hinting that if it stands they will withdraw from the federation. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and a vice president of the AFL, has flatly refused to sign the anti-Communist form.

In the CIO some leaders have said they would not sign the affidavit, though the issue has not been so sharply drawn as in the AFL.

Both big unions have until October 31 to make up their minds. By that time their conventions will have met and had an opportunity to pass on the issue.

"I don't want to be stubborn about this," Denham said. "But I have given long study and careful consideration to the Taft-Hartley Law and there isn't any other ruling to be made on the non-Communist affidavit requirement as I see it.

"Maybe the courts will differ with me. But no one yet has been able to convince me that I'm wrong."

Foreign Aid, High Prices Face Truman

Special Session Question May Be Decided Today at White House Talks

President Truman was prepared today to take up with members of his Cabinet the pressing and mutually dependent problems of hunger and economic chaos abroad and high prices at home.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, just back from the West, conferred at length yesterday with his aides and advisers on the picture he will present to the President. The meeting covered the twin questions of how much food can be exported to Europe and how prices here can be lowered.

Anderson will join Secretary of State Marshall and Commerce Secretary Harriman at today's White House talks. Marshall flew down yesterday from Flushing Meadows, where he has been attending sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Special Session at Stake

Out of today's meetings probably will come Mr. Truman's decision whether to call a special session of Congress or await the regular session in January.

There were reports that, in any event, the President would issue a radio appeal to the Nation to adopt a voluntary program of self-denial and austerity this winter.

Mr. Truman, before he left for his 20-day trip to Brazil and again aboard the battleship Missouri returning, said he saw no reason for a special session. Events since then, however, have moved fast and far.

The situation in Europe has gravely deteriorated, food prices at home have mounted to unprecedented heights, the Army has confessed its inability to meet occupation costs with present appropriations, and popular clamor for a special session has increased.

Strong Action Demanded

Strong Government action, even a return to wartime controls, was demanded in some quarters. The CIO Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers urged the President to declare "a state of national emergency." A special session was demanded by the League of Women Voters and the Progressive Citizens of America.

Among Mr. Truman's chief advisers, opinion on calling a special session was divided. One Administration official said the question was so closely tied in with domestic politics and foreign policy that the President might be forced to seek a "gentleman's agreement" with Republican leaders before he could afford to call such a session.

Possible Programs Outlined

Possible programs which may be presented to Mr. Truman include:

1. Reduction in grain exports and substitution of such foods as dried fruit, fats, and oils, which are more plentiful. November grain export allocations already have been almost halved.

2. Voluntary rationing, already indorsed by Anderson and others high in the Government and in public life.

3. A publicity campaign to "talk prices down," such as the action of the Commodity Exchange Authority, which focussed attention on grain speculators with a prompt drop in grain prices.

4. Return to compulsory rationing and price controls, a solution little favored within the Administration and emphatically opposed by Republicans in Congress.

Taft Backs Palestine Partition And Two-State Customs Union

(House Speaker Martin Indorses U. N. Committee Majority Report on Palestine. Page 3)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Reno, Nev., Sept. 21.—Senator Robert A. Taft came out today for the partition of Palestine into an Arab state and a Jewish state, as recommended in the majority report of a United Nations special commission.

The still-unannounced candidate for President spoke out on the Palestine question amid a Nevada lull in the anti-Taft labor demonstaration that followed him through California.

Taft said the commission's recommendation for immigration of 150,000 Jews into Palestine "will remove a sore spot in the economy of Europe and reduce the seriousness of the problems of displaced persons in Europe."

Terming the report "a sound compromise of the dangerous controversy which has existed," he indorsed also the proposed customs unions between two states.

"Our Government, up to this time, has been noncommittal, but I believe it should indorse the report in principle, put the United States definitely on record in favor of the proposed plan and urge its adoption by the General Assembly," he said.

Taft, meanwhile, slapped out at reports that he "backed into" announcement of his candidacy in an ad libbed speech to an open-to-the-public GOP rally here last night. It was the first meeting of any size not accompanied by a picket demonstration.

Hearing Nevada AFL unions and representatives present to hear his case, Taft went into a detailed defense of the Taft-Hartley Act. He made his usual rebuttal of "slave labor" bill charges and once again listed what he said were the "advantages" to rank and file labor.

At this point, reporters understood him to say: "There is nothing in this act to prevent any union leader from calling me, or any other candidate, anything that he wants."

Immediately after the meeting, Taft denied having used language avowing his candidacy even indirectly or intending to do so if he did.

Today he hotly denounced reports that he backed into a premature announcement as "wholly unjustified" and "utterly unfair."

Russia Defeated Also in Attempt To Bar Discussion Of Korean Issue

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Secretary Marshall's proposal for a permanent "little assembly" was placed before the United Nations General Assembly today despite Soviet objections that it was illegal.

Andrei Gromyko tried to bar consideration of the proposal by the Assembly, arguing that the United States was trying to "create an organ parallel to the Security Council" in which 20 vetoes by the Soviets have blocked action on vital issues.

Only Oscar Lange of Poland wearily agreed with Gromyko. The vote was 12 to 2 in favor of placing it on the agenda.

Propaganda Issue Accepted

Gromyko won approval to place on the agenda, however, the proposal submitted by Andrei Vishinsky condemning "criminal propaganda for a new war" in the United States, Turkey and Greece. It was an empty victory. No vote was considered necessary after Warren Austin of the United States announced he had no objections to placing the resolution before the Assembly.

Gromyko's objections were futile also on these other proposals approved by the steering committee for the Assembly agenda:

1. Marshall's proposal to place the stalemated problem of Korean independence before the Assembly. The vote was 12 to 2 again, The Soviets drew only Poland in support of its contention that it, too, was illegal.

2. Argentina's proposal that Italy be permitted to suggest methods of revising the peace treaty to lessen its more onerous obligations. The vote was four to two; the United States voting for the proposal with Chile, Cuba and Mexicon. Poland again was the only support for Soviet opposition. Eight members abstained.

Austin Defends U. S. Stand

The American proposal for a permanent interim committee of the General Assembly amounts to "circumvention of the Security Council," Gromyko asserted.

The questions of peace and security, he said, are solely the province of the Security Council on which each of the five major powers have a veto.

"Apparently," he added, "the Government of the United States does not find it agreeable that the Security Council does not accept all of the United States proposals."

Austin declared, however, that the Security Council does not have exclusive jurisdiction over peace and security of the world.

"If the Security Council is rendered futile," by a "very small minority, that does not destroy the United Nations power to maintain peace," he said.

"Peace and security will be guarded," he added, under the proposal, "even though the Security Council, which has the primary function, fails."

As envisaged by Secretary Marshall the interim committee, con-

Short Crops, Prices Hint At Disaster

Government Urged To Take Action as 'Crisis' Approaches

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Short crops, soaring prices and the crisis in Europe resulted yesterday in a fresh wave of warnings of impending disaster, prescriptions for relief and demands that the Government do something.

Three national organizations called for prompt legislation to deal with the situation and two of them urged a special session of Congress.

But Idaho food dealers were told restoration of price controls would be impractical and Senator Brewster (R., Me.) said in a broadcast that rationing should be voluntary and expressed the belief a special session would not be justified.

State Agricultural Commissioners J. E. McDonald of Texas and Tom Linder of Georgia demanded that Secretary of Agriculture Anderson resign "before our entire economy is disrupted." They called him a "professional politician" and decried his "ever-changing policies."

In the midst of these conflicting counsels, Undersecretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd offered gloomy prospects for the world food situation this winter. He warned that "the damage of our corn crop is going to have repercussions all over the world."

"If the world is going to be fed even as well as it was last year," Dodd said in a radio broadcast, "and that was not well enough by a large margin, exporting countries like the United States will have to send abroad about 50 million tons of grain. But the most we can see in sight, including both North and South America, is about 28 million tons—about half enough."

Whether a special session will be called to deal with the double trouble of low supplies and high prices will be considered by President Truman today.

British Seek 668 Millions Cut for Arms

May Reduce Fleets, Close Naval Bases, Drop 250,000 Troops

London, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Britain may soon cut her armed forces by nearly 250,000 men, reduce her fleets and perhaps shut down one or more naval bases because of the grave economic crisis, usually well-informed sources said today.

The government was understood to have demanded that the army, navy and air force trim expenditures by 22 per cent. The War Office confirmed that service ministers and chiefs of staffs are meeting regularly under the chairmanship of Defense Minister A. V. Alexander to consider means by which a reported $668,000,000 can be pared from budgeted expenses by next March.

Unofficial speculation centered on these measures:

1. Slashing of the armed forces to well below one million. The previous government plan was to reduce the armed forces from the present figure of 1,225,000 men to 1,007,000 by March.

2—Further reduction of Britain's Pacific fleet, and possibly the home fleet, and closing of one or more naval dockyards or overseas bases.

3—Reduction in the number of army divisions; paring—and perhaps withdrawal—of British forces in Palestine; withdrawal of troops from Italy and probably Greece; cutting of occupation forces in Germany and Austria.

The Sunday Times, taking an extreme view of the reported economy moves, said last week that admiralty chiefs had warned the cabinet that the demanded cuts might well entail virtual withdrawal of the Pacific fleet and abandonment of such naval bases as Singapore and Hong Kong, closing of the West Indies naval station and withdrawal of the entire fleet air arm east of Port Said.

The admiralty refused to confirm or deny the Sunday Times dispatch, but said: "It is common knowledge that talks on cuts are going on."

300-lb. Bombs In Arms Cache Seized in Cuba

Havana, Sept. 20 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Genovevo Perez Damera, chief of the Cuban army, announced tonight that troops had seized 13 truckloads of arms, including 300-pound bombs, at a country estate in the district of Calabazar near here today.

He made the announcement at the presidential palace after an interview with President Ramon Grau san Martin. He said this was "only the beginning" of disarmament of civilians.

The general did not give the name of the estate nor of its owner. He said soldiers who found the arms had been sent there to make an arrest in connection with a recent gun battle between police factions in suburban Marianao.

They did not find the man they sought, he reported, but did arrest a navy man on the estate. Earlier in the day, two other men were taken into custody in connection with the police fight.

The Washington Post Poll

Only 5% of Area Residents Plan to Move Away in Year

Washington is not likely to shrink to its prewar size very soon, according to the latest Post Poll.

Only 5 per cent of the families living in the Washington area plan to move away within the next 12 months. Another 5 per cent are uncertain of their plans, but 90 per cent definitely intend to remain at least another year.

Since 1940 Greater Washington has had a 45 per cent increase in households, a recent Census release showed. This was second among metropolitan districts only to the Norfolk-Portsmouth-Newport News, Va., area which had a 61 per cent increase.

The findings of the Post Poll would indicate that the increase is not dependent only on the wartime boom.

Among those planning to remain in the area, 17 per cent hope to move to a different house within the next 12 months. Seven per cent hope to move to a purchased house, while the remainder plan to move to rented dwellings.

The Post Poll published last week reported that only 3 per cent have definite plans to buy or build a house in the next 12 months.

These findings of the Post Poll are based on interviews with a representative sample of adults living in Greater Washington.

Local residents were asked:

"In the next 12 months do you think you will stay in this house, or move to another place? (If 'Move') Where?"

Replies were divided as follows:

	Total Wash. area	Of those living in: D.C.	Md.	Va.
Plan to move out of Washington area	5%	4%	7%	5%
Plan to stay in Washington area	90	90	91	93
Uncertain of plans	5	6	2	2

The rate at which families are planning to leave the Washington area has decreased in the last year and a half. A Post Poll published in March, 1946, showed that 13 per cent of the families in this area were planning at that time to move away. The decrease may be due to departure since that time of wartime employes, or to change in plans.

Seventeen per cent are planning to remain in the Washington area for another year, but hope to move to a different house within the coming year. These were asked what type of dwelling they intended to move to, and replied as follows:

Total intending to move to a different house	17%
To purchased houses	7
To rented houses	3
To apartments	6
To other types of dwellings	1

Ax Killing Called Solved

Mrs. Harris Seized at Train, Accused of Husband's Death

Detectives arrested Mrs. Minnie Harris, 37, as she stepped from a train at Union Station early yesterday and charged her with the ax murder of her husband, James E. Harris, 40-year-old union leader.

Her arrest, police said, solved a slaying which detectives have been investigating for nearly five months.

Harris, business agent of the Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Union (CIO), was found hacked to death in his bed in his home at 3120 13th st. nw., last April 28.

Detective Sergts. George E. Cook and E. E. Scott of the homicide squad arrested Mrs. Harris at the station and took her to headquarters shortly after 5 a. m. where she was booked on a charge of first degree murder.

The woman was taken before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage at 11:15 a. m. for arraignment. Commissioner Turnage ordered her held without bond pending action by the grand jury. She was taken to the District Jail.

At her arraignment, Mrs. Harris complained that she had not had a chance to obtain an attorney. She said also that she wanted to make a statement of what had happened.

"It isn't the way he said it at all," she said.

She may have been referring to Commissioner Turnage's reading of the charge, which said that "she did with deliberate malice and premeditated malice kill and murder one James E. Harris."

Police refused to discuss what evidence led to Mrs. Harris' arrest. They said they could not disclose the evidence until the case has been presented to the grand jury.

It was believed, however, that

Assails Disruptive Strikes

Hoover Urges Self-Rationing To Aid 'Cooperative' Peoples

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Herbert Hoover tonight coupled a plea for voluntary rationing to tide the world over "a grim food year" with a warning that the American people could not be expected to make sacrifices "unless there is complete cooperation abroad."

The former President declared in a speech prepared for delivery at Madison Square Garden that "such events as the present political strikes of farm hands in Italy, which paralyze their production of food, do not stimulate American effort." He referred to the strikes that ended Friday.

The meeting for German relief was sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, the Labor League for Human Rights and Lutheran World Relief, Inc. Hoover said the purpose of the meting was "to rally for another winter American moral and spiritual forces engaged in voluntary relief to a distressed world."

The 73-year-old statesman who earlier this year toured the American occupied areas of Europe at the request of President Truman to survey food needs, said that in recent months the world food outlook "has become even more distressing."

"Due to the failure of agricultural recovery in Europe and Asia, together with devastating droughts in other parts of the world—including the American corn crop—the next 12 months will be a grim food year."

He said there was "every indication" that the 1947 harvest would yield as little as did that of 1945, when "there were the gravest dangers of mass starvation" and during which "hundreds of

Greek Unions Jump From 600 to 2200

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Piraeus, Greece (By Airmail).—"One Greek—one general" goes an old Hellenic proverb. "Seven Greeks—a labor union," could be another saying. For under Greek labor laws, seven people, even if not of the same profession, may register as a labor union.

Before the rise of the Metaxas regime there were 600 unions in democratic Greece. This number rose rapidly, often because the dictatorial regime wanted to establish rival, non-Socialist unions. The number of unions had risen by 1940 to 1400. Today there are 2200.

The growth between 1940 and 1947 was due to the tactics of the Communists, who felt that by splitting the unions they would increase their own representation in the General Confederation of Labor. Thus, if there was a union with 250 members, with one Communist in it, the proportional representation system gave probably only one seat to the Communists. If, however, they split the same union to five groups, each having one Communist representative, the Communist representation in the same group of people would be increased to five.

The multiplicity of unions brought such names as "Union of the Tubercular Patients," "Union of the Retired Dancing Masters" and "Union of the Wronged People in Piraeus."

Under Greek statutes, no one may receive more wages than the premier's yearly salary. Premier Themistocles Sophoulis draws 1,250,000 drachmae, or $250.

If a union joins the General Confederation of Labor, 1000 drachmae (20 cents) are immediately deducted from each member's wages to pay salaries of union officials. About 40 per cent is paid to the higher ranking officers, the rest divided according to an agreed key.

Before the war, labor unions had approximately 300,000 members. Now the number is nearly 500,000.

Greek Chiefs Planning War On Guerillas

Athens, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Greek government drew plans today for a drive against all guerillas in the north who do not surrender under the 30-day amnesty offer.

With approval from the United States aid mission of the Greek request for an enlarged army, the ministers of war, air, marine and public order called a meeting tomorrow with the chiefs of staff for the army air and navy to decide on the most efficient methods of applying the new military strength to restore order in the country.

The government reportedly asked that the 130,000-man army be increased by 70,000 regulars and 70,000 national guardsmen, with the cost coming from the 300 million dollars allotted by the United States Congress for aid to Greece.

Informants said the National Guard would be stationed in towns and villages under experienced officers and its duty would be to fight the guerillas. The guard would consist of members of the villagers' armed militia, which will be disbanded, and new men to be called up.

The number of the new men to be called will depend on the extent of military equipment which the American Government can make available, the informants added. The Communist newspaper Rizospastis said equipment for 30,000 men will come from the United States.

Meanwhile the army continued its offensive against the guerillas in the north, who were largely ignoring the offer by the Greek Parliament of amnesty if they laid down their arms within 30 days.

Finland Threatened By General Strike

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Finnish Trade Union Congress delivered an ultimatum to the government today, warning that if the problem of wages was not solved satisfactorily before 6 p. m. Wednesday, the Congress would call a general strike beginning Thursday.

Earlier the Congress had presented to the government a proposal for regulating wages.

Britain Charges Nullification by Bulgaria, Romania

London, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—A foreign office spokesman, blasting the Bulgarian and Romanian governments as unrepresentative of their countries, said today that any further violations of the principles of their peace treaties would be "a crime against European civilization."

In a less severe attack on Hungary, the foreign office denounced the "disproportionate influence of the small Communist party" in that country and commented:

"It is hoped that the lesson of events in Romania and Bulgaria will not be lost on the Hungarian people."

The statement was made as a review of British relations with the three former enemy states on the basis of the new peace treaties which went into effect last Monday.

Britain's blast was aimed primarily against the governments of Bulgaria and Romania, completely under Communist domination, because of their persecution of opposition political leaders and their general denial of fundamental human rights.

The fact that Hungary got off with a milder denunciation, though its Communists really are in control, caused speculation whether Britain might seek to trade Russian approval of Italy's admission to the United Nations for Anglo-American approval of Hungary—leaving Bulgaria and Romania outside.

Bulgarian and Romanian regimes were branded as not representative of "the political feelings or traditions of the peoples of those countries."

Attention was called to the clause of the three peace treaties guaranteeing the countries in question to observe enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms, including freedom of expression of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion and of public meeting.

"It cannot be disguised that the Bulgarian and Romanian authorities have done much recently in flagrant conflict with these provisions," the spokesman said.

"The fact that the peace treaties have been ratified by no means implies that the behavior of these governments is condoned. Their denial of fundamental freedoms, their dissolution of opposition parties, their suppression of newspapers, their numerous arrests without charge and similar undemocratic procedures are condemned by British opinion, which has found its most positive expression in the deep concern voiced at the death sentence passed in Bulgaria on the eminent opposition leader Nikola Petkov.

Bullets Rake Moslem Column In Sikhs' Sacred Amritsar

By G. Milton Kelly

New Delhi, Sept. 21 (AP).—Gunmen rushed from houses and opened fire on a column of 50,000 Moslem refugees marching through Amritsar toward new homes in Pakistan, an official military spokesman said today.

Twelve refugees were killed before the military ended the attack by killing 6 gunmen and wounding 37.

The incident occurred yesterday despite a strict curfew which had been imposed to keep Amritsar residents in their homes. Amritsar is a sacred city to the Sikhs.

Was One of Series

The clash was one of a series of communal engagements described to a news conference by the spokesman. Lord Mountbaten, British Governor General of India; Lady Mountbatten and Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, flying at 600 feet, today saw five more columns of refugees marching from camps in India's East Punjab toward Amritsar and Pakistan. The largest column stretched for 8 miles and the shortest was 3 miles. The refugees moved on foot, on camels, bicycles and in oxcarts.

The spokesman said 12 refugees were dead, 33 wounded and 40 missing after a 45-minute gun battle with "grim hand-to-hand fighting" in the dark when gunmen ambushed a train carrying several hundred Moslems from Delhi toward Pakistan. The military guard, four of whom also were wounded, fired 1000 rounds of ammunition before driving off the attackers. Losses among the assailants were not determined.

Killed in Pakistan

Inside the Pakistan border, the spokesman continued, 21 persons were killed and 13 wounded when armed Pathans opened fire on a refugee train carrying non-Moslems. Seven of the Pathans were arrested. The Pathans are a Moslem community living near the border which divides the Northwest Provinces from Afghanistan.

The spokesman said conditions in India on the whole are under control, and violence is only sporadic.

Two Royal Indian Air Force planes today dropped 12,000 pounds of food for 90,000 non-Moslem refugees who had been without supplies for several days at two camps in the West Punjab and Northwest frontier Provinces. Rains had made land supply impossible.

CAA Issues Rules On Moored Balloons

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced yesterday that regulations restricting the operation of large moored balloons will go into effect on September 28. Those having a diameter of more than six feet or a gas capacity of more than 115 cubic feet are regarded as potential air hazards.

Permits will be demanded when such balloons are operated closer than 500 feet to the base of any cloud, during the hours of darkness, when ground visibility is less than three miles, at altitudes more than 500 feet above the ground, or within five miles of an airport.

U. N. to Debate Interim Plan

sisting of one representative from each member nation, would remain in permanent session. It would be empowered to summon a General Assembly to deal with matters of unusual importance. It would make the United Nations machinery for peace available continuously to members, rather than at the annual sessions.

Suspicion that the proposal would curb the veto power appeared obvious from Gromyko's remarks. A few second before Marshall made his proposal last Thursday, he declared the United States would be willing to accept elimination of the unanimity requirement on matters concerning pacific settlement of disputes among the nations and on the admission of new members.

Gromyko came to the meeting obviously prepared to meet stern arguments against placing Vishinsky's proposal against "warmongering" on the agenda.

When Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, committee head, called up the item, there was a great shuffling of papers on the Soviet desks.

Austin, who last night called Vishinsky's speech libelous, raised his hand, was recognized and calmy announced:

"I find it necessary to leave the committee for another appointment. However the United States has no objection to placing it on the agenda."

Aranha did not bother to call for further debate or a vote.

Gromyko's argument against the Korean proposal was a puzzle to many of the delegates. One thought he saw a desire by the Soviets to resume negotiations for Korean independence, and a possibility that they might agree with the United States' recent proposals to turn the entire matter over to the four countries party to the agreement; United Kingdom, China, Soviet Russia and the United States.

Gromyko said he objected to having it placed before the United Nations because "the United States should first choose the legal way if it is dissatisfied."

Then, calmly ignoring the fact that the United States had already been rebuffed by the Soviets on the same proposal, Gromyko added:

"It should be placed before the four powers, instead of the 55 countries of the United Nations."

Austin declared that the United States had made that proposal to the United Kingdom and China, and they had agreed.

"Soviet Russia did not agree," he added. "Now what does one do under these circumstances; what is the United Nations for?"

On the proposal for Italian treaty revision, there appeared a tendency to wait until Italy had obtained membership in the United Nations, so that she could argue her own case. Soviet Russia vetoed her application on August 21 at the Security Council.

The Security Council is to consider the application again next Thursday on the request of this country. Some delegates at today's meeting professed to see in Gromyko's remarks an indication he would not veto the membership again, because the peace treaty has gone into effect since the last veto.

16 Nations Ready to Accept Marshall Plan

Paris, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Sixteen European nations will sign tomorrow their report to the United States on the Marshall Plan, providing a blueprint for European economic recovery on the basis of self help plus some 20 billion dollars in United States aid.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will preside at the brief ceremony in the clock room of the French foreign office where on July 12 the European Committe of Cooperation inaugurated its work.

The report, which now has the full approval and backing of State Department officials in Europe, will be sent at once to Washington by special mesesnger. British Sir Oliver Franks, chairman of the committee, and Herve Alphand, economic director of the French foreign office and committee secretary, will go to Washington to answer any questions regarding the report.

As finally drafted, after material revisions forced by the United States including a scaling down of aid requirements, the report asks for $22,440,000 to finance the recovery of non-Communist Europe. Of this $3,130,000,000 is asked for capital equipment from the International Bank of Reconstruction. This would leave $19,310,000,000 which the American Congress would be asked to vote.

However, another and hitherto undisclosed sum of about three billion dollars would be asked over the general estimate, to stabilize weak European currencies.

Jewish Homeland Urged by Martin

Rivals Near War

Irgun Seizes Haganah Girl In Palestine

Jerusalem, Palestine, Sept. 21 (U.P.)—Masked men of the extremist Jewish underground group Irgun Zvai Leumi last night kidnaped a girl "commando" of the moderate Haganan forces, bringing the rival groups one step nearer to what observers believe may become a shooting war.

The abduction followed a new outbreak of violence last night in which extremists ambushed a British searching party, killing one British soldier and wounding another in a burst of fire from an orange grove on the Haifa-Tel Aviv road near Lydda airport.

The kidnapers walked boldly into the girl's home on Aliya street in Tel Aviv at dusk and politely asked her father, who was preparing to go to synagogue, if his daughter was at home. Before the father realized what was happening, the abductors seized the 22-year-old girl, carried her to a black limousine and drove off.

No report of the kidnaping was made to police, in keeping with the Haganah policy of attempting to prevent authorities from mixing in the private battle. But it was assumed that Haganah men were out in force tonight scouring the Holy Land for the girl.

Speaker Advocates Making Palestine Into Two States

The United Nations was urged yesterday by House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

Martin, in a statement expressed the "hope and trust" the United States Government would support the report of the U. N.'s Special Committee on Palestine, which provides for partition of that area with separate Jewish and Arab states. This solution of the "tragic problem of Jewish national homelessness," Martin said, "has been delayed entirely too long."

He pointed out that planks favoring a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine had been written into the 1944 platforms of both major parties.

"The time for redemption of these pledges is long overdue," he declared. "I am confident that approval by the United Nations and and by the Executive branch of our Government, of the recommendations of the majority report (of the U. N. special committee) to set up the proposed Jewish State will meet with the approval of Congress."

Martin added that he hoped the U. N. would not further "whittle down" thesize of the proposed Jewish State, and pointed out that it already has been reduced from 40,000 square miles to less than 6000.

106 Slovakians Accused of Plot To Kill Benes

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 21 (AP).—Formal charges have been prepared against 106 persons accused in connection with an alleged plot to kill President Eduard Benes and overthrow the republic, Slovakia's Ministry of Interior said today. A communique said the persons charged 30 students, 30 government employes and 10 priests and nuns.

Earlier the ministry had said 142 were arrested, while unofficial reports set the total at near 600.

Other persons arrested, the communique said, were released after questioning.

The partisan leftist group in Slovakia set yesterday as the deadline for purging "reactionaries" from the Slovakian government, but the day passed without incident while a joint Czech-Slovak commission studied government rosters.

Poisonous Snakes Wriggle Over Gulfport Beaches

Gulfport, Miss., Sept. 21 (U.P.)—Snakes by the score took over the beaches of this swanky Gulf Coast resort section today wriggling and basking in the sun on the debris covered sand where up until only two days ago, scantily clad debutantes, stenographers and other tourists paid high prices for the same privilege.

National Guard troopers and residents of the area were killing the snakes as fast as possible. But the water moccasins, blown and floated in from the back bayous and marshes by the hurricane were numerous enough for a reptile convention. Troopers said there were hundreds of them.

Police and the National Guard said they had received no report of any one having been bitten by these poisonous reptiles and that everything possible was being done to prevent it.

Taft Favors Partition Plan

at Taft's Nevada meetings, local labor spokesmen said, is due to the fact that the CIO is not heavily organized in this section of the State and some of the AFL leaders are Republicans.

Peter A. Burke, former Democratic speaker of the Nevada house, and editor of the only labor publication in this State, told reporters:

"We don't go in for stuff like that."

One ad-libbed line in Taft's speech was plainly a concession to the known views of California's Gov. Earl Warren, and was believed to reflect Taft's chat with Warren in Sacramento yesterday. Taft said the West's reclamation program could be "carried out more effectively and with more sympathy if the Secretary of Interior is from the West."

Interior Secretary Julius Krug is from Wisconsin. Warren long has favored an Interior Secretary from the coast. Taft, like all other GOP presidential possibilities, is bidding for support of the man who will have a solid California delegation back of him. The view here is that neither Taft nor any other potential candidate has received anything like a commitment from Warren.

The shy-in-public, often unbending Ohioan, who has received anything but encouraging political reports on this jaunt, meanwhile had a taste of night life in this gambling, marriage-and-divorce capital of the United States.

Senator and Mrs. George W. Malone led Taft and his wife, Martha, past lines of "one armed bandit" slot machines, roulette and black jack tables and other gaming devices in the wide-open "clubs" of this city. None in the group placed a bet.

Nevada last year, through its 1 per cent State tax on the gambling take," collected about $1,200,000 in revenue.

That means the "take" was well over 100 million dollars and the amount bet in this State was over a billion.

A reporter jokingly asked Taft if he might favor a national lottery law. "I don't think so," smiled Taft.

Late today the Senator and his wife drove to nearby Lake Tahoe. There he will polish his remaining major speeches before resuming his trip up the Coast Monday.

In his Palestine statement today, Taft came out on one of the few issues on which the outspoken Ohioan had hitherto taken no firm stand.

Backing up the majority report of the United Nations Special Commission, Taft said the British government "has asked for the advice of the Assembly of the United Nations and should certainly be willing to accept the views which have been requested."

"Prompt action by our government will tend to solve one of the most serious problems that faces the world," his statement said. "In view of our policy frequently declared by Congress, we should state our position clearly at this time."

DP Care in Vienna Found 'Appalling'

To Tour Camps

Senators Plan Spot Study Of DP Issue

A special Senate committee laid plans yesterday for a tour of war refugee centers in American-occupied zones of western Europe to study the question of admitting displaced persons as immigrants to the United States.

The tour, to be undertaken next month, will be followed with recommendations to the Senate. The group, a Judiciary subcommittee, is headed by Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.).

Revercomb told a reporter that admission of refugees must be restricted to "labor shortage" and proper "selectivity."

Another committee member, Senator McGrath (D., R. I.), said in a separate interview that he was "very sympathetic" to the war victims and to President Truman's proposal for admission of a "substantial number."

A third member, Senator Donnell (R., Mo.), said: "I am going into this with an unprejudiced viewpoint and an open mind."

Congress failed to approve President Truman's requests for passage of special legislation at the recent session for admission of some of the European war refugees.

Revercomb said his latest information was that some 800,000 persons still were being cared for in the refugees camps within American occupied zones.

He said the Senate investigators plan to visit most of these camps in Germany, Austria and Italy and talk with both officials and refugees.

The International Refugee Organization, set up by the United Nations, took over control of these camps last July. Congress approved participation by this country in IRO, after making certain this involved no obligation to accept any of the war victims as immigrants.

"We want to learn if the IRO has repatriated any more of the refugees," Revercomb said.

Other members of the Senate investigating group are McCarran (D., Nev.) and Cooper (R., Ky.), who are out of Washington.

The Senate asked for a report on the Displaced Persons problem at the start of the next regular session, January 10. Its recommendations on a broader subject, immigration laws generally, are due March 1.

Congressmen Assail Hospital Condition, Children's Treatment

Vienna, Sept. 21 (INS).—Members of a United States congressional committee were "appalled" today by unsanitary conditions at hospital installations for displaced persons and bluntly charged refugee children in Vienna are receiving "improper medical care."

Dr. Joseph L. Pfeifer, chief surgeon of St. Catherine's Hospital in Brooklyn and medical member of the committee, upbraided Austrian medical authorities for permitting the conditions.

The three-man committee, investigating displaced persons' camps in Europe, spent three hours on an exhaustive check of charges that "unauthorized experiments" are being carried out on Jewish refugee children.

Implications of "atrocities" by Austrian doctors were contained in the charges of Harold Trowb, director of the American Joint Distribution Committee. Vienna authorities denied the charges but ordered an investigation.

Chairman James G. Fulton (R., Pa.) after the committee observed five children who had just been operated on in the contagious disease hospital, issued a statement charging improper medical care, but said no evidence of "atrocities" had been found, he added:

"However, we are going to recommend a reexamination by the Army and the International Refugee Organization concerning medical service at DP camps."

The committee was accompanied on its investigation by Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.), acting chairman of the Armed Services Appropriations Committee, Representative Margaret C. Smith (D., Maine), chairman of the appropriation committee's group on health, and Admiral Clifford Swanson, Navy surgeon general.

League President Miss Anna Lord Strauss wrote the President and congressional leaders that "a program of controls is urgently required to see that available United States supplies are allocated fairly and that inflation is curbed."

The league urged these "immediate steps: "Extension of export-import controls beyond their February, 1948, expiration date; consumer credit limitations beyond November 1; controls to divert grain from "livestock feeding, distilling and industrial uses, to human consumption."

2. The Progressive Citizens of America, which also asked a special session and announced it was launching a national "mass petition campaign" to achieve that result. It said it asked "rigid limitation of profits, rationing of scarce commodities, protection of the small farmer by subsidies, and vigorous prosecution of speculators who gamble in food prices."

3. The American Veterans Committee, which advocated in a statement by Chairman Chat Patterson that the Second War Powers Act be restored. This, it said, would "give the Administration the power to increase supplies of scarce resources, to limit the production of nonessentials, and to distribute scarce materials such as steel and grain."

Probe to Open

In Chicago a Federal grand jury investigation of high food prices will open today to cover the meat and milk industries in Chicago and their relationship to food prices. Sixty-one officials and employes of major meat packing firms, milk companies and associations and officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers Union have been subpenaed.

Senator Brewster, interviewed over Radio Station WEAM, declared the first step in solving the problem of food and prices should be "a great campaign for voluntary conservation." He recalled that he already had advocated restrictions on the amount of wheat used in bread, substituting potatoes and other vegetables in part for grains in distilling and restricting "speculative hoarding" of grain. He added that he did not believe these measures would require a special session.

In their statement demanding the resignation of Anderson, McDonald and Linder said they would ask Congress to investigate the "price and marketing policies of the Agriculture Department," which they charged were "unfair, unwise and dishonest." They were here as sponsors of a farm meeting.

Wife Arraigned In Mate's Death

The Washington Post

MRS. MINNIE HARRIS, wife of James Harris, cafeteria workers' union official, was arraigned yesterday in connection with his death last April 28 the arrest was the result of a case built up by police over a long period.

Police said Mrs. Harris was returning to Washington yesterday from Winnsboro, S. C., where she had been visiting relatives. They said that she had been out of Washington most of the summer, part of the time at Atlantic City, N. J.

Harris was killed last April with blows from an ax as he slept in his bed. The murder weapon has never been recovered. Police found a deep gash on the right side of the victim's neck and another which had ripped the left side of the eye and face. According to Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg, either blow could have caused death.

millions of people had little more than the barest subsistence."

In a statistical outline of prospects for the coming year, Hoover pointed to a "disastrous decrease in the harvest of coarse grains, that is, corn, oats, barley, etc.; that decrease will exceed 32,000,000 tons." He declared that an increase of about 4,000,000 tons in the harvest of wheat and rye still would leave the world about 28,000,000 tons short of the 1946 supply.

He added, however, that this shortage "is not as discouraging as it might look. At famine levels all grains are more or less interchangeable as human food and animal feed. The major weight of the decrease, therefore, will fall upon animals.

"The situation which now confronts us has two major effects. First, there will be less coarse grains in the world available for human consumption than last year. Second, the immense deficit in feed grains will result in a much smaller amount of animal products for export."

Hoover declared "our farmers must resist the natural tendency to feed wheat to animals when coarse grain feed is scarce."

He called also for reduction of "unnecessary human consumption and waste of food" and added that "such measures, in order to secure the best results, must be largely voluntary . . ."

Standing By U. N.

Warren R. Austin has further sharpened the great issue before the United Nations. Speaking to the American Association for United Nations, which had met to honor him for distinguished service as United States representative to the U. N., he left no doubt as to why this country is trying to buttress the international security system by means of new machinery in the General Assembly. On issue after issue coming before the Security Council and various other U. N. bodies there has been a large degree of agreement. "We are not divided in all the councils of the United Nations," Mr. Austin said. "Quite to the contrary—we are in many and varied organs and activities united. The votes there are seldom close; they are almost always overwhelming." The obstruction has come from a very small minority.

This minority obstruction has been utilized, moreover, to defeat constructive operation of the United Nations peace system. The veto power was given as a negative weapon. It was designed to prevent use of the United Nations machinery against one of the big powers, or contrary to its vital interests, when no agreement could be reached on a major question of world policy. Actually it has been used by the Soviet Union to frustrate virtually every constructive step toward the maintenance of peace and the building of an effective security system. The development of a U. N. police force has been thwarted; international control of atomic energy has been stymied; use of the Security Council against threats to the peace has been thwarted, as in Greece. In short, the U. N. is being used by Moscow to destroy collective action for peace and not to foster it.

The whole idea of collective action for peace is thus in the gravest jeopardy. To permit this obstructionism to succeed would be to undo many of the cooperative efforts that are now so promising, to discredit American leadership, to defeat the will of an overwhelming majority of the peoples represented in the United Nations and immeasurably to increase chaos and the risk of war. The question really boils down to whether or not the Soviet Union shall be permitted to use the U. N. to thwart the very purposes which it was created to promote. In these circumstances the American plan of setting up within the General Assembly an interim committee on peace and security is as essential to save the United Nations as it is to arrest the deterioration of great power relations into a state of hostilities.

Unearthing Dollars

Suggestions that the United States Government take steps to bring out of hiding dollars hoarded by foreigners are being seriously discussed as a means of making such dollars available to hard-pressed countries during the present emergency. Advocates of the plan assert that from one to three billion dollars of our paper currency is probably scattered about the world, wherever our troops have been quartered. American tourists and foreign-born citizens remitting money directly to friends and relatives living abroad have also contributed to the building up of dollar hoards. These idle dollars which now elude the authorities would speedily be dislodged, it is argued, if the Treasury were to issue a new series of currency notes setting a date in the near future after which the old notes would cease to be valid. If, in conjunction with this proposal, foreign governments agreed to exchange dollar bills for local currencies without penalizing holders, the dollars so acquired could then be used for a limited time by the governments receiving them to pay for imports.

Proponents of this ingenious scheme minimize the enormity of the task involved in printing and distributing new currency issues to replace the huge volume of outstanding paper money. To effect an exchange of new for old currency within a few weeks or months would be a Herculean task. Moreover, the proceeding might well shake the faith of people everywhere in the stability of the dollar if we were actively to support the attempts of foreign governments to force dollars out of hiding by such high-handed methods. For the present proposal would compel foreign holders of our currency not only to give up their dollars but also to accept in exchange local curriencies in which they probably have no confidence.

In addition to these objections to a forced disgorging of hoarded dollars, the effectiveness of the proposal as a relief measure is highly questionable. For there is no assurance that the governments most in need of aid would be the ones garnering the lion's share of the dollars, whereas when we make loans to aid foreign governments the amount of such advances can be related to their respective needs. Moreover, so far as the effect on our price level is concerned, the spending of idle dollars that otherwise would have remained in hiding is quite as inflationary as the spending of newly created dollar credits placed at the disposal of foreign countries by our financing agencies. Indeed, it may have a more inflationary effect if the dollars fall into the hands of governments not requiring aid that are tempted to spend them.

Rail Rate Relief

In response to the urgent appeal of the railroads for a 10 per cent emergency increase in freight rates the Interstate Commerce Commission has speeded up hearings, and it is hoped its answer to the carriers' petition will be ready by the end of this week. This immediate increase has been requested to offset in part large increases in operating costs due to the recent wage award to nonoperating employes and to increases in coal and materials prices since last July. The revenue needs of the roads, however, go far beyond the amounts required to cover these unanticipated additions to operating costs. For since the outbreak of the war their annual operating expenses have risen by more than three billion dollars, and only a third of that increased outlay has been offset by additional revenues from rate increases. Consequently the roads are asking for an over-all rate increase averaging 27 per cent.

As they were allowed a permanent increase in freight rates last January averaging 17.6 per cent, the grant of their latest petition would result in an advance in freight rates of 49 per cent since 1939. Contrasted with the interim rise in prices, such an increase would be modest, although, compressed within so short a period, the effect on prices and living costs would be substantial. Nevertheless, railway rates cannot be held down indefinitely at the expense of the carriers while wages and prices of other goods and services soar. Any such policy can only result in severe losses of earnings, consequent rapid deterioration of the quality of the service rendered by the carriers, and recurrent bankruptcies.

The necessity of remedial action has, we think, been conclusively demonstrated by spokesmen for the railways in the current hearings before the ICC. At the present level of freight rates, taking into account the recent wage increases and other expenses, it is estimated that Class I roads as a whole will have a net deficit of 241.8 million dollars in 1948. In the Eastern district the outlook is even worse, with the roads anticipating a deficit of 47.6 million dollars in net operating income and a net deficit of 204 million dollars, or about 85 per cent of the deficit for the entire country.

The relatively poorer showing of certain Eastern carriers, notably the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford, is attributable to their much greater dependence on passenger revenue, which has dropped sharply; their much larger proportion of less-than-carload freight, which involves heavier handling charges, and their higher expenses for terminal operations.

The imperative need of prompt rate relief is high-lighted by the plight of the Pennsylvania, whose net deficit for the present year on the basis of existing relationships is estimated at 15.7 million dollars. Without increases in freight rates the Pennsylvania's net deficit next year will, it is estimated, amount to 95 million dollars. The New York, New Haven & Hartford estimates, on the basis of present rates, that its net operating income deficit will amount to eight million dollars next year, while with the addition of income from other sources its net income deficit will approximate 15 million dollars under the new reorganization setup. Even with the proposed 10 per cent emergency increases in effect, the New York, New Haven & Hartford expects that monthly net income deficits would be further increased during the remainder of 1947. In face of such testimony, it is obvious that the limited interim rate relief requested should be granted at once, and the ICC should then proceed to act promptly on the request for further increases in rates.

The railroads are, as one witness pointed out, chronic sufferers from the serious time lag between the burdens of increased costs and the relief that might come in the way of increased rates. A rail regulatory system must be sufficiently flexible to permit of rate adjustments when needed. Otherwise irreparable damage will be done to the regulated industry and to the national economy. Moreover, the efficiency of the regulatory agency itself—the ICC—is measured by its willingness to respond quickly to justified appeals for changes in the rate structure.

School Days

The public schools are opening their doors today to an estimated 91,000 students. Some 7000 of those students, 6300 of whom are Negroes, will receive instruction in half-time, double-shift schools because there are not enough buildings to meet the need. Many crowded schools in the older parts of the city are also obsolete and lack essential equipment. Since the more modern schools have been built in new residential areas, in which the moderately well-to-do live, the victims of building shortages are mostly low-income families, predominantly Negroes. Although Commissioner Young maintains that there has been no deliberate attempt at racial discrimination, we think the facts speak for themselves. At the very least there has been a lack of proper planning that would have given Negro students a better break.

A speeding up of the school construction program is imperative, not only to eliminate doubling up but to relieve congestion and replace antiquated buildings now in use. The extent of the need is indicated by the Board of Education's request for more than 11 million dollars for the next fiscal year, in addition to the 7.6 millions on hand. The chief immediate obstacle to pushing this building program is not lack of funds but cost limitations imposed by Congress that prevent the placing of contracts. In view of the urgency of the need, present high building costs should not be made an excuse for further delaying the school construction program.

Fiorello H. LaGuardia

The story of Mr. LaGuardia is one of those paradoxes of which American politics has always been so fruitful. There was little in his personal or political history up to 1934 to suggest his remarkable genius as an administrator or that he would prove to be the most successful Mayor in all the history of New York City. His temperament was highly histrionic, his methods were often demagogic. He owed his early rise in politics to the creation in his district of a personal political machine, powerful enough to make him independent of the regular Republican organization and practical enough to best Tammany at its own game. In both city and national politics he played from the beginning a lone and clever hand, aligning himself for the most part with the dissident or insurgent elements of his party, choosing instinctively, as it seemed, the cause or position that would serve at once to keep him in the spotlight of publicity and leave him free to make whatever temporary alignments or alliances seemed likely to advance his ambition. He acquired some reputation as a liberal or progressive at a time when conservatism or party regularity would have submerged him in an almost anonymous majority. In 1924 he bolted his party to support the late Senator La Follette with the same ease with which he later made common cause with the American Labor Party and with the New Deal.

Thus he was in no way handicapped by the disrepute into which the Republican Party and its principles had fallen in the great depression of the early 1930s. Mr. LaGuardia's reputation as an agitator for reform enabled him to benefit by the general reaction to the Seabury investigation into the scandals of the Walker administration; his reputation as a progressive enabled him to profit by the general trend toward economic innovation. All this, to be sure, was no proof that his course had been merely opportunistic, although a great many professional politicians regarded it in this light. The real test of LaGuardia's sincerity for reform came during his three terms as Mayor; and not even his enemies can now deny that he proved himself more than equal to it. In a dozen years he accomplished more for the good of the city than had been accomplished in more than a half century of Tammany domination, spasmodically interrupted by ineffectual waves of reform. He created an able and efficient administration in all departments; he emancipated the police administration from politics; he ignored purely political considerations in making appointments; he spurred on programs of slum elimination and the construction of low-cost housing; he eradicated most of the racketeers and gangsters with whom the city had been infested since prohibition times; he unified and modernized the transportation system—indeed, the record of his accomplishments is much too long to be recited here.

Throughout it all he remained the same noisy and tempestuous personality. By this time the picturesqueness, or "color," he had cultivated for political reasons had become habitual. He talked a good deal more than was necessary, and by no means all of what he said was wise or well considered. His demoniac energy and passion for publicity led him into adventures that brought him no credit and were incompatible with his responsibilities as Mayor, such as, for example, his brief and rather farcical career as head of the Civilian Defense program and his effort to obtain a general officer's commission in the Army.

But in everything he did, whether wise or foolish, he was a superb showman. The show that he provided was sort of loud and rowdy melodrama, which for a time was in highly welcome contrast to the smooth cynical comedy of the Walker administration; in the end of course it began to pall. But now that he is gone, the great city of which he was so much a part, and whose ethos he personified, has great reason to mourn him. The legacy of accomplishment that he leaves to his fellow New Yorkers will remain when all his vagaries and eccentricities have been forgotten.

WORDS NEEDING NO MUSIC

When grass in summer
as with snow in winter, is by flower petals
whitely overspread,
surely one may find excuse for mourning
Beauty
fallen, . . . dead.

Be not so childishly mistaken!

Beauty is only born
the hour it seems to pass, when memory like wild bird wildly calling flies over snow or flowers laid on grass.

McNerney, Inc.

The recent utterances by Mr. McNerney, the official mouthpiece of the Brookland-Dahlgren Terrace Protective Association, completely shocked native Washingtonians in the boldness of its attack. It served to remind all of us of the now past rantings and harangue of the Bilbo-Talmadge era, a period of intense, almost hysterical hatred for the American Negro minority. At this very moment hatred of a most vicious kind is directed at American minorities through restrictive covenants, discrimination, segregation, and other extremely dangerous practices.

Philadelphia, the first stop for the Freedom Train, is being refreshed with the edifying aspects of our American cultural heritage which demands that Americans everywhere, regardless of racial origin, be permitted to enjoy the "Four Freedoms." These self-same provisions are also applicable for Washingtonians as well. Decent Americans throughout the Nation won't rest until McNerney and his cohorts are made the laughing stock of their respective organization, the Brooklyn-Dahlgren Terrace Protective Association; indeed, we won't desist from fighting all attempts at bigotry, hatred, and other shameful proclivities of potentially dangerous elements until punishment to the limit of the law is meted out to these heartless, demagogic groups. This is our pledge.

Individual Responsibility

In our press comes the report of the immediate and acute need of the people of Europe and the question of how much we can give nationally to help her several countries to survive.

The people of the United States can go far toward bringing Europe and all the war-torn world back to self-support by considering it an individual responsibility; by individually eating moderately what is needed for health; by using food purchased and not allowing it to spoil when new food is purchased; by putting the scraps of leftover meat and vegetables into the refrigerator to be used later in soups, salads and stews, instead of into the garbage can as is now the practice; by definitely getting rid of the idea that bread, pie and cake a day or two old is not fit to eat; by eating more fresh fruits and vegetables in place of grains that can be stored and shipped when and where needed; by the individual studying his own calorie needs according to his exercise of energy and by remembering that the body is a chemical machine and that fruits and vegetables give it much of the minerals it needs that high calorie foods do not necessarily give; by conscientiously "trying out" all scraps of fat and giving them to an organized center for such collection.

There is another disgusting waste—the throwing of rice on church steps and on the street at marriages. What must be the bewilderment at the thoughtlessness of it to people who come here from food-hungry nations!

Saving food individually, making what individual contributions we can of money, food and clothing to organized relief centers, will help save in national expenditure. Waste and extravagant use of anything—food, clothes, gas, electricity, coal, gasoline, affect directly or indirectly the relation of our resources to the suffering of Europe, and pyramids the enormity of the job of the little handful of men who are trying to engineer help for the sick and the war-worn of the world.

A little austerity in living would add to the stature of the people of America, actually and in the eyes of the world. Must we be bombed, burned, scarred and starved into the desolation that the beauty that was Europe is today to feel the despair that must be theirs?

ZORA W. BUTLER.

Wages and Prices

The present trend of prices should answer conclusively and once and for all the loose charge that high wages paid to union workers are the cause of the high cost of living. Meat is leading the upward race of prices by a wide margin. Yet wages paid to unionized workers constitute a very small proportion of the cost of meat.

The truth is not that high wages cause the high cost of living, but that unions are compelled to make desperate efforts to increase wages equally with the rising cost of living, and usually wages lag somewhat behind. Then, because of their greater economic power, the owners of industry pass on to the buyer all the cost of the increased wages, usually with a little addition of their own. The proof of this statement is that nearly every important industry is reporting greater profits after taxes than ever before. For the economic power of ownership makes it possible for the owning class on an average to avoid absorbing any of the increased wage costs unless they want to do so because they think that is good business policy in the long run.

Every day that passes makes it clearer that we made a mistake in abolishing price controls.

Restoring OPA

With regard to the advice to the American people to eat less, as is advocated by Senator Taft, it would seem that he could recognize that such a proposal for the majority of working people would be rather disastrous. It has already been shown that the British people are suffering from their many years of poor and insufficient diet. Are we, who live in the lap of plenty, to sit by and listen to such proposals from men like Senator Taft who did away, or at least helped to do away, with the OPA?

It is certainly time for proper congressional measures to be taken to prohibit the racketeering of essential food products by inflationists. If money were all concerned, that would be bad enough, but it is the lifeblood and future health of the whole Nation which is at stake.

Mixing Margarine

I have just finished another messy job of margarine "mashing," and I am in the proper mood to appreciate "Kitchen Hand's" comments on that subject. Three cheers for her!

Being just a housewife, I know little of communism, have never known a Communist, or been approached by one. However, I know they're "agin" big business, and I know I am, too, if big business interests cause colorless margarine. Heavens to Betsy! Here the U. Olympic Park Boundary Revision

Your consistent interest in the guarding and proper use of our natural resources prompts me to write in connection with the proposed revision of the boundaries of Washington State's Olympic National Park.

Originally, a portion of the Olympic area—a high, rugged, beautiful wilderness land—was incorporated in a national monument. This area amounted, in 1934, to 318,000 acres; it included 95,000 acres of mountainous, barren land of extreme beauty and 123,000 acres of sub-alpine forest in addition to 100,000 acres of commercial forest land bearing Douglas fir, hemlock, true fir, spruce and cedar. The bulk of this area is valuable only for scenic and recreation purposes.

In 1940 the monument was converted into the Olympic National Park, and substantial acreage added to it. With further additions made in 1943, it now totals 848,000 acres, an increase of 530,000 acres over the original monument. The major portion of these additions were not mountainous or sub-alpine land, but commercial timber land upon which communities of the area had depended for their livelihood.

Residents of the Olympic Peninsula are tremendously proud of the Olympic National Park; they would resist any attempt to diminish its value as one of the Nation's natural wonders. At the same time, they believe it is a mistake and a serious economic waste to remove from commercial use more timber than is necessary to make the park the finest of its kind in the country. It means very real hardship in one of the State's potentially most productive regions.

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that harvesting the unneeded portion of this Olympic timber does not mean loss and devastation. It does not presage the end of timber growing on the Olympic Peninsula. It is proposed to log it on a permanent sustained yield basis, as other forest lands of the region are being logged. Wherever cutting is done, a new crop of trees will be rooted within a maximum of five years.

Much of this Olympic timber is old growth—fine trees of enormous size. It includes the so-called "rain forests." Residents of the Olympic Peninsula heartily support the thought that thousands of acres of these trees must be preserved as an example of our primeval forests.

They do not believe, however, in locking up many more thousands of acres of these trees than can be seen by visitors or used as a park. Their economic life depends on this surplus, which is also an integral part of the economy of the whole Pacific Northwest.

There are two bills dealing with phases of the Olympic Park question. Both were introduced by Congressman Russell V. Mack. H. R. 4054 calls for the transfer of 57,000 acres of commercial forest land from the park to the Olympic National Forest. This is land which is purely commercial in character and can never in any way contribute to park values. It is irregular in size and lies roughly along the western boundary of the present park. It contains an estimated two billion board feet of timber; the entire park contains an estimated 17 billion board feet of timber.

H. R. 4053 calls for creation of a special commission of nine members representing all phases of interest in the park. It shall be the duty of the commission to determine what areas now within the Olympic National Park and adjacent areas under control of the Department of the Interior are valuable primarily for timber, mineral and other commercial resources, and what areas are valuable primarily for scenic attractions, recreation, or as the habitat of wildlife.

A commission made up of all the groups who have a stake in the park area might very well be able to reach an intelligent, workable conclusion.

Posting The Books

By J. M. Lalley

In The Dark

THERESE, by Francois Mauriac; translated by Gerard Hopkins. (Holt, $3.)

M. Mauriac's rank as the foremost living French novelist is not likely to be disputed, at any rate since the death of Romaine Rolland; for M. Gide is preeminently a diarist and M. Duhamel a dramatist. Perhaps M. Mauriac has even claims to be considered the greatest living novelist in any language; his only rivals for this distinction that I can think of at the moment would be the Norwegian Knut Hamsun and the German Thomas Mann, now a naturalized citizen of the United States. The curious thing, then, is that M. Mauriac's work should be still almost unknown to the generality of American readers, although much of it is now available in translation. The most natural explanation of this neglect is that M. Mauriac's books are highly difficult, not because of any obscurity in style or method but because of the heavy emotional demand they make upon the reader. They are concerned with the deepest and most destructive human passions, with the problem of love and evil and with the unbearable isolation of the soul. Their content is profoundly tragic, and they have the effect of turning the reader inward upon himself only to discover there an awful emptiness.

In Therese, M. Mauriac, whose thought has been at all times under the powerful influence of Pascal and has been suspected by some to contain at least a tincture of Jansenism, deals with the problem of spiritual destiny and the human will. The story is constructed of four episodes written at intervals of several years, each apparently representing a phase of the author's religious development. Thus, considered as a novel, it suffers from a certain looseness of form. The first part, called Therese Desqueyroux, published by itself in 1927, leaves the question unresolved. The character from whom the book derives its title is a young woman of imagination, sensibility and passion, who, finding intolerable the smug and sterile life in which her marriage has trapped her, seeks to poison her husband. Her crime is discovered in time to prevent the murder and the evidence is suppressed to spare the family a public scandal. The incident and its attendant details are recounted through the reverie of Therese herself, as she returns from some sort inquiry or trial at Bordeaux, in consequence of which the charges against her have been dismissed. The effect of this method of narration is to make it seem that in her progress toward evil Therese has moved in some strange borderland between automatism and volition. At the same time M. Mauriac is at some pains to point up the contrast between the frankness with which Therese faces the knowledge of her own character and the sordid self-deception of those who surround her. The next two episodes are glimpses of Therese in later life, after she has left her husband and child, and has launched upon a loose, bohemian life in Paris. In a reckless moment she relates the story of her crime to a lover who is losing interest in her; but the lover, excited rather than horrified, begs her to poison an enemy of whom he stands in dread. Frightened now by her propensity to arouse others to evil, and fearful that she will end by doing what her lover asks, she seeks a psychiatrist and pleads with him to save her. But the doctor with cynical brutality merely reminds her that so far from being in the lover's power she has him in hers.

The lover kills himself, and presently she is casting about for another to replace him. At this point Therese seems indeed a hopelessly lost soul. Nevertheless M. Mauriac seems to be telling us that it is better to be a lost soul than never to have had a soul to lose. Therese at least has moments of terrible clarity, when she can recognize that she is subsisting upon illusion and can tell herself, after all her amours, that, "I know nothing of love save that it is the constant object of my desire, a desire that possesses and binds me, setting my feet on the ways of the wasteland, dashing me against the walls, forcing me into bogs and quagmires, stretching me exhausted in the muddy ditches of life." In the final episode, which is the longest of the four, M. Mauriac seems to be preparing the ground for Therese's redemption. Now an invalid and prematurely aged she becomes an unwilling matchmaker between her daughter and a reluctant suitor, only to discover that the youth has fallen in love with herself. It is here at last that Therese finds in herself the will to rebel against her evil destiny and by an act of sacrifice to repudiate her power "to poison and corrupt the lives around her." She returns to her husband's house in her native Gironde to die; for as Mauriac tells us, she is one of those who are fated to live in darkness and "for whom the night can end only when life itself ends."

Such tormented souls, he says, have abounded in all times and places. Therese is, therefore, both a unique creation and a universal figure. The power of the novel lies, however, in the psychological penetration, fully comparable to that of Dostoievski, with which M. Mauriac exposes, in all its tragedy, the mortal hunger that consumes the heart of this seemingly cold and conscienceless woman. He obliges his reader to recognize that her sickness is in some way akin to his own and bit by bit to identify himself with her and thus to experience in his own person the fullness of her suffering and the terror of her destiny.

Matter Of Fact

How Freedom Can Die

ROME, SEPT. 21. — By what strange process can the Communist Party come to power in an ancient and proud western European nation, with a vigorous, hard-working, and strongly Catholic people? This is an important question, both in Italy and for us in the United States. It is especially important now, because of the strong current evidence that the Kremlin has altered its directive to the western European Communist parties —that here in Italy for example, Palmiro Togliatti is instructed to take power as soon as possible.

First it is necessary to grasp what such directive is like. The day-to-day transmission of orders between the Kremlin and the Communsit parties outside Russia is a myth. If there were such wonderful free communication, even the Kremlin would hardly choose to humilate a subordinate as Togliatti was recently humiliated, when he was permitted to publish an impassioned argument against the Kremlin's ratifying the Italian peace treaty several hours after ratification had actually occurred at Moscow. Rather, the best authorities believe that the directives consist of broad general orders, defining missions in their order of importance and broadly indicating strategy, similar to the basic directive that was given each American theater commander in war time.

Within this rather wide frame, Togliatti, Thorez and their colleagues of the Italian and French party executives are reasonably free to act, subject only to absolute obedience to any further indications of opinion from Moscow.

THE BEST GUESS (and it is, of course, a complete shot in the dark) is that Togliatti's present directive can be paraphrased in ordinary language approximately as follows: "Take power quickly if possible. Use the party influence with the labor unions to promote the maximum of political and economic disorganization. But on no account risk a civil war or the suppression of the party."

That important final qualification requires Signor Togliatti and his fellows of the high command to move delicately as well as swiftly. To be sure, the Communists possess a powerful paramilitary force in Italy. The best of the Communists' wartime leaders — international brigade veterans like Pietro Secchia and the notorious Colonel Moscatelli—are reported still ready to function. And besides this core of fully ready outfits, there are said to be about 130,000 additional Communists who have retained or secured partisan arms.

Yet these Communist forces are regarded as defensive for the present and, for the future, as the cadres of a new secret police. Togliatti wants no civil war which would invite external intervention. It is generally agreed that a Communist bid for full power will not be made except in conditions of disorganization and misery that all opposition is effectively paralyzed.

PRECISELY FOR THIS REASON, Signor Togliatti must highly thank God, to Whom he is surprisingly polite, for the state of nervous, hand-wringing indecision apparently prevailing in Washington. If America gives Italy wheat, coal and the dollars to pay for them, Togliatti has not got even a good fighting chance. The triumph of Signor Togliatti can be almost mathematically foretold, if America remains paralyzed in the present emergency.

The first result, of course, will be the fall of the De Gasperi government, as a direct result of its inability to give the people bread and work. This will occur relatively shortly. There will follow a general scramble from which almost every one predicts the emergence of what is called "government of national crisis." The phrase is certainly an odd one. First of all, the government of national crisis will contain representatives of all parties especially including the left Socialists and Communists. Its diversity alone will condemn it to impotence. And just to insure that impotence is really total, it is further predicted that this government of national crisis will be headed by the kind of antiquated, vaguely dilapidated but available elder statesman who would guarantee feebleness in any case. The Communist candidate for the job, it is already known, is the aged former Premier Nitti, and Nitti also seems to be considered the most likely choice by Socialist and Christian Democrats.

In such a government of concourse, the Communists will take politically vital posts like the ministry of the interior which carry no responsibility for economic policy. For the purpose of such a government will be to provide a ripening period of decay—of increasing hunger, unemployment and chaos. When the ripening period is over, in the spring, will come the national election. And then, if all this is permitted to happen, the Communists can take power, only masking their absolutism with a few Socialists and other stooges carefully trained to imitate Hungarian models.

Voluntary Rationing

By Ernest Lindley

The 'Eat-Less' Campaign

THE PRESIDENT has returned to find most of his top advisers convinced that (1) the Government must take steps promptly to see that wheat will be available to meet the minimum needs of western Europe, and (2) that the only practical course open at the present is to persuade American consumers to eat less meat.

Lindley

Preliminary plans have been sketched for a voluntary self-rationing campaign to be launched in October, probably under the auspices of a committee of distinguished private citizens.

The theory, in simplified form, is that if the American people will curtail their consumption of meat, the price of meat will ease off, farmers will lack the inducement to feed wheat to their livestock, and more wheat will be available for export. Very little meat is being exported. The high price of meat is attributed primarily to record-breaking consumption by the American people, due in turn to record-breaking prosperity. If the price of meat is high enough in relation to the cost of wheat, farmers will fatten their livestock on wheat. The price of wheat might be bid up to the point where it could not be fed profitably to livestock at present prices for meat, or the price of meat might be brought down somewhat. Either way, more wheat would be available for other purposes. But the latter would be less disruptive to the American economy as a whole and certainly would be more satisfactory to the average householder.

Meat prices, however, can be checked and brought down only as supplies increase or demand falls. The only thing that can be done about this by the ordinary citizen is to curtail his consumption of meat.

MANY OFFICIALS and experts with long memories doubt that a voluntary self-rationing campaign will accomplish much. During the most recent such campaign, in the spring of 1946 the Famine Emergency Committee provided the ballyhoo and the explanations to the American people, but the large savings were made by employing the war powers of the President to curtail use of wheat by distillers, brewers, millers, and feed-mixers. Those powers have lapsed and could be restored only by a new act of Congress. Whether Congress could be persuaded to revive them is questionable. In any event, Congress is not likely to be in sesson earlier than the middle of November, and perhaps not then.

The restoration of compulsory consumer rationing of meat is even less feasible, both politically and administratively.

Thus, voluntary rationing appears to be the only immediately available alternative to doing nothing. Some of its advocates believe, moreover, that if properly organized it would succeed, if for no other reason than that it is to the ordinary householder's own interest to bring down the price of meat. It is argued that if he can be reliably informed within what limits he and others must hold their weekly purchases of meats in order to bring down and keep down meat prices, he will cooperate and help to see that others do so.

An accretion of grain for export to Europe would be a by-product of a campaign based chiefly on self-interest, although the humanitarian aspects and the importance of saving western Europe from disaster could also be exploited.

IF THE VOLUNTARY program does not produce results, then Congress could be asked to supplement it with controls in November, when—or if—it is called into special session. Without evidence that further steps were imperative, after an energetic trial of voluntary methods, it is doubted that Congress could be persuaded to consider seriously the restoration of any internal controls.

Farmers' Gross Income in '46 208% Above Prewar Average

By the United Press

The Nation's farmers received a record $24,500,000,000 for last year's crops and started 1947 with assets worth $111,209,000,000, Agriculture Department economists reported yesterday.

The 1946 "cash receipts" represented an increase of 208 per cent over the prewar 1935-39 average, while the asset figure was more than double the value farmers held on January 1, 1940.

The economists' report, based on revised figures, pointed out that most of the increase in farmers' gross earnings resulted from still-booming prices that have shot up their income still further during the first eight days of this year.

Despite the record take last year, the report said, farmers went further into debt. The total of crop loans increased from $3,119,000,000 to $3,524,000,000 during the year and mortgages on farms climbed 600 million dollars to a year-end total of $4,890,000,000.

In this connection, the Federal Reserve System reported that insured commercial banks alone had $2,200,000,000 outstanding in mortgage and short-term farm production loans as of last June 30.

The agriculture experts said that farmers' cash earnings last year were "the largest in a continually increasing series which started in 1939 and apparently has not yet reached its climax."

"This long uptrend in farm income," they said, "stemmed from the strong wartime and postwar demand for all farm products, and from increased production. Price increases have played a major part in the gains."

An official Agriculture Department report showed recently that farmers were doing even better this year. It said the average farmer was taking in more dollars than ever before and that net receipts during the first eight months of 1947 totaled $17,400,000,000.

House Unit to Study Farms by Bus

A new style in Congressional junkets is being organized by Chairman Clifford R. Hope (R., Kans.) of the House Agriculture Committee.

Hope's committee will start a nationwide tour October 13, to study at first hand what the country's farmers want in a new, comprehensive program for agriculture, to replace the many farm laws that expire late in 1948.

Half of the trip will be made in a chartered bus, Hope said. This bus will carry the members through the Southeast and as far west as Kansas City.

By using a bus, Hope explains, the members will be able to "stop en route to inspect farms and agricultural processing plants, and to obtain first-hand information on agricultural problems."

During the week before the tour starts the committee will study plans for a long-range farm program being prepared for it by the Department of Agriculture. It will also meet with representatives of major farm organizations.

Franco Foe Flies Here

Paris, Sept. 21.—Alberto Del Albornoz, premier of the Spanish Republican government in exile, left Paris today by plane for New York where it is expected he will appeal to the United Nations for action against the government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He was accompanied to the airport at nearby Orly Field by the Spanish President, Martinez Barrio, and several members of his cabinet.

Rising Income of Nearby Farms Drained Away by Spiraling Expenditures

Fairfax Machinery, Chemical Costs High; Little Fellow Pinched

Machines and chemicals have raised the efficiency level of farming in Fairfax County, but making the soil pay today is more costly than ever before, farmers declare.

The county agent can point to scientific improvements such as introduction of machinery on a large scale, better breeding, better feed, soil conservation programs as indications of permanent improvement in the farmer's position.

On the other hand, the commercial farmer who buys as much as he sells suffers with the consumer from high prices. And the little farmer who just tries to get along with his cow, chickens and a few acres is more pinched for dollars than ever.

This was the opinion of some of the county's 1200 farmers interviewed last week. They agreed that though they are handling more money today, higher costs of labor, feed and equipment have in most cases eliminated any net gain.

Crop Yields Increased

Crop yields per acre have been increased by soil conservation methods despite the growing menace of the Japanese beetle. But the Fairfax County farmer can grow only 20 per cent of the corn he needs for his own stock.

Prices of his goods are up 50 to 100 per cent. But a farmhand who made $60 a month 10 years ago now gets close to $200. Chicken feed that sold for $45 a ton before the war now costs $120. Dairy farmers say they paid $94.60 a ton for feed the past week they once bought for $29.

G. Wallace Carper, who keeps about 50 milk cows on his 300 acres near Langley, typifies the big dairy farmer. He ships up to 200 gallons of milk daily to the Washington market.

He's getting more milk per cow today because of better breeding he said. But while milk prices have jumped nearly 100 per cent, Carper said, labor costs have kept pace. And feed prices are up as much as 300 per cent over a ten-year period. "I'm just about holding my own," he asserts.

Graham James, another big dairy farmer in Chantilly, says he won't plant any corn next year. "I'm going to put in a crop that I can get from the ground to the barn without human help."

Hired Help Too Costly

O. D. Moser of Oakton raises day-old chicks for fryers. He conducts all his business at home, says he can't take the time to carry the birds to market. He can't afford a hired hand to keep things going while he is away. Price of his three-pound chickens is $1.25, which is 25 cents higher than last spring. In the same period, his feed costs jumped from $90 to $120 a ton.

On the other end of the chicken business is L. W. Carter whose Grassy Knoll Hatchery in Lincolnia is the largest in the county. His incubators are now running at half their 300,000-egg capacity because of the seasonal slump in egg production. Carter thinks he is better off than before the war because high meat prices have created a greater demand for poultry.

County Agent Joseph E. Beard said he thinks the farmer is getting out of debt. His credit is good, Beard said, and while farm machinery is still not sufficient in the county there is twice as much machinery as in 1941.

The resulting increased farm output, said he, will help cushion the blow to farmers if prices fall.

It Flows In—And Flows Out Again

THE BUTCHER, the baker, the Government worker—they have nothing on the farmer.

THROUGHOUT Greater Washington's farm fringe they tell the same story the city dweller knows so well, and in the same words—more money comes in than ever before, but expenses drain dollars just as fast.

FARMERS differ as to whether their general situation is worse or better than before the war. The farmers in Prince Georges County and Montgomery County, Md., and Fairfax County, Va., however, agree on one thing—they should not be used as the target for criticism about high prices.

A FEW FARMERS admit they are in "good shape" this year, but one farmer may be thriving while the man operating the adjoining farm may be loaded with debt. Growing tobacco near Upper Marlboro, Md., is a lot different from raising chickens at Oakton, Va.; some farmers can weather a bad season, others can't.

BUT THE ECONOMIC pattern underneath is the same: (1) income is way up, but so are production costs; (2) labor is expensive and hard to get, and (3) science has changed farming considerably from the hit-or-miss days of the few acres worked by the farm family.

Montgomery Growers Actually Worse Off Than Before War

The farmer in Montgomery County now has a higher cash income than ever, but, plagued by a labor shortage, scarcity of farm machinery and skyrocketing prices for farm essentials, he declares he is not as well off as before the war or even last year.

That was the consensus last week of a cross section of agricultural leaders and just plain farmers. Other highlights of their comment:

1. There is a "tremendous difference" between farming methods employed today and those practiced before the war. Contributing factors are "the miracle of DDT," new and improved farm machinery and improved varieties of seeds, most of them hybrids.

2. The county's producing farms are geared to a dangerously high level of production. When foreign markets fall off, the bottom may drop out of the local prices.

3. Farmers' incomes have gone up about 50 per cent over prewar days, but costs of farm essentials have jumped 100 per cent.

4. The old days of farm hands requiring only strong backs are almost over. Higher IQ's are now needed because of more scientific farming and greater mechanization of farms.

Express Resentment

Some farmers interviewed expressed resentment at what they called a common belief by city dwellers that the farmer is raking in money while food costs for city residents multiply.

President James D. King of the Montgomery Farm Bureau declared:

"We are being hit the same as the consumer. We are large buyers, and the cost of feed, equipment and fertilizer are out of sight—not to mention labor and repair costs, which are keeping pace."

King, who operates two farms near Germantown, Md., totaling almost 700 acres, said he believed the farmer was "well situated now, but fearful over what unsettled conditions and high prices are going to do to him."

County Agent O. W. Anderson said the labor shortage threatens to become permanent. "But we are getting the work done, thanks to machinery," he added, "and it is getting easier every year."

One farmer, P. L. Atwood of Layhill, Md., declared he could find no help for his 84-acre farm, so he plans to pasture his farm next year and raise cattle.

Another, Tom Garrett, who just retired as president of the Southern States Cooperative, said feed had jumped from $85 a ton to $105 a ton in the space of one year.

Gives Up on Help

Robert H. Miller, jr., of Four Corners, Md., who runs a 400-acre farm, said he did not believe the farmer was as well off today as before the war. With farm labor at $1 an hour, he has given up trying to find help, he said.

Crops in the county this year have been, or will be, average or better, according to County Agent Anderson. A bumper corn crop was expected earlier, he said, but Japanese beetles caused an estimated 15 per cent loss.

Principal production of Montgomery's 2250 farms, with about 1250 of them commercial, is dairy products, poultry, meat livestock, wheat, corn and general farming, in that order, according to Anderson.

Farm credit is generally good, Anderson said, and great strides have been made during the war years in paying off indebtedness. However, he added, many farm buildings are in disrepair as a result of the scarcity of building materials.

Prince Georges Faces Hard Blow in Cut In Tobacco Yield

Prince Georges County farmers, whose bumper tobacco crop from last year brought low prices, are facing a much smaller crop and higher production costs, with little prospect of higher prices.

The county is Maryland's first in tobacco production. Prince Georges tobacco accounted for 10,490,000 pounds of the 40,500,000 pounds output of 1946 in Maryland. Tobacco brought an average of $44.67 per 100 pounds in this year's tobacco markets, $12 less than the average for the previous year.

Since tobacco is 68 per cent of the total value from sale of all commodities in Prince Georges County, this crop is the index for the prosperity or lack of it in the county.

Tobacco crops this year suffered from the drought in August, but recent rains have improved the situation slightly, according to Dr. S. H. DeVault, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Maryland, and Harley M. Brewer, agricultural statistician in charge of the Maryland Crop Report of the Extension Service.

Dairy and poultry farming rank next to tobacco in the county, and farmers say increased costs of feed are cutting the margin of profit "to the bone."

Officials state that farm machinery prices have increased almost 17 per cent in the past year, and now are more than 210 per cent higher than prices in 1910-1914, which is the basic period used for price-index tabulation. Farm building materials jumped 45 per cent in the past year and are 323 per cent of the 1914 figure, it is declared.

University of Maryland experts feel that considerable building of tobacco curing and storage sheds must be accomplished if even the expected small crop is to be prepared properly. Lack of storage and curing space probably affected prices this year, they averred.

Another price factor, they say, was the unwillingness of the tobacco farmers to grade their tobacco before taking it to market. During the war years, tobacco buyers bought practically every type of leaf at high prices, but more selectivity is being used now, and the buyers automatically lower prices on mixed grade.

Plight of the Prince Georges County farmer, particularly the tobacco grower, is summed up by William H. Marr of Brown's, Md., who operates two farms, one of 244 acres and another of 100 acres.

"In my 38 years of farming, I have seen some pretty tight times," Marr said, "but the way things are now it looks worse than I have ever seen it in my entire farming career.

'Startling' Soviet Atom News Hinted

London Paper Says Russia's Attitude May Be Based on Progress in Research

London, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The newspaper Sunday Times featured in its early edition today an article from its New York correspondent suggesting that Russia's attitude in the United Nations Assembly might be due to progress it had made in the field of atomic energy.

Without explanation, the article was killed in later editions.

Correspondent O. H. Brandon wrote:

"Russia's irreconcilable attitude toward the United States, I have reason to believe, is based on the great progress the Soviet has made in the development of atomic energy. I understand that in the next few days an announcement will be made by Moscow regarding Russia's progress in the field of atomic development—an announcement designed to startle the world.

"The Kremlin probably believes that such a disclosure of Russia's atomic sources would have a profound effect on American foreign policy, which it thinks is 'tough' largely because the United States Government believes that it alone possesses the 'know how' required to manufacture atomic bombs."

The correspondent quotes "well informed quarters" as predicting that a Russian announcement on atomic energy progress would coincide with a General Assembly discussion of atomic energy control.

Falls Church Fiesta Concludes

Approximately 1500 persons last night attended the "History of Falls Church" pageant climaxing the three-day Falls Church Fall Fiesta.

The pageant, written by Mrs. Eleanor Lee, was presented by a local cast at Crossman's Field on Lee hwy. near Roosevelt st. It depicted the history of Falls Church from Indian times.

Proceeds from the pageant and other fiesta events will go toward purchase of land for a town park. C. F. Blanding, park committee chairman was unable last night, however, to estimate the amount raised.

Edward C. Knowse, Falls Church planning commission chairman, said the fiesta was "a tremendous community success," beyond all expectation. Nearly 800 of those at last night's pageant had to stand for the performance.

During the afternoon, about 300 persons toured nine historic colonial homes in Falls Church and were entertained at tea at the end of the tour at Walnut Hill, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arnold on Annandale rd.

D. C. School Budget Shows Warm Concern for Children

fund was asked to buy a site near 6th and G sts. sw for a new elementary school building to replace the present Amidon, Fairbrother and Greenleaf schools. The three schools, built from 1882 to 1911, had 654 pupils last year. The proposed new school would be a 24-room building.

Anacostia High

Anacostia High—$845 for custodial help, to carry for a full year a job now authorized on a half-year basis. No new building money, since the schools already have $128,750 to finish seven third-floor rooms and bids are to be advertised soon.

Armstrong High.—$750,000 to start a new school in Brentwood Park to replace the present overcrowded Armstrong plant. Total cost is estimated at $2,505,000. The city now has $75,150 for planning the project. Enrollment last fall was 1639 in a building designed for 1077. The board said the school's north wing, built in 1902, is a potential fire hazard due to narrow passageways and should be abandoned for school use as soon as possible. It also warned that double-shift classes might have to be started in the near future, seriously hampering the education of students there, and making it the city's first senior high school with a double-shift program. Also asked was $25,700 for science, athletic and shops equipment.

Banneker Junior High—$195,000 to finish a 15-room addition to Banneker's second and third floors. The other $75,000 necessary has been appropriated. Last year's enrollment was 916—200 above capacity—and without the addition the school would soon have to go on double shifts. Also asked was $30,000 to equip the new addition.

Beers Addition Sought

Beers School—This is one of the two white elementary schools where double-shift classes were held last year. The budget request calls for adding $337,800 to the $150,000 already on hand for an eight-room addition, also $28,000 to equip the new rooms. The estimates also call for hiring extra school personnel in the middle of the next school year. School officials emphasized they were guessing the best they could about when new buildings will be ready, and they won't know for sure until a contract is made for the job. Bids are to be advertised next year.

Birney School—$510,000 asked to go with the $215,000 already on hand to finish a new 24-room replacement building near Nichols ave. and Sumner rd. se. The old Birney buildings had more than 200 children in six part-time classes last year. Other money for Birney included $28,000 to equip the new building, and to hire personnel for it the middle of the next school year. Officials plan to advertise the Birney project for bids early next year. (See also news about proposed new junior high school in the paragraph on the Turner School.)

Junior High Assistant Asked

Browne Junior High—The board asked $3563 to hire another assistant principal next September 1. Board rules call for two assistant principals in schools with more than 1200 students. Browne, one of the two Negro junior high schools on a double-shift system, had 1767 students last year. (See also paragraph on Miller Junior High.)

Bruce School—The requests include $12,450 for planning a $415,000 addition, with eight classrooms and an assembly hall-gymnasium. The addition would relieve part-time and overcrowded classes at the Bruce and Monroe schools. Last year there were 74 pupils on part time at Bruce. Five classes there and eight at Monroe had more than 40 pupils in them. The bduget requests also call for spending $150,000 to get the land necessary for the Bruce addition.

Burrville School—The board asked $45,000 to buy additional playground space for the 24-room Burrville School.

Tomorrow: Further details on budget proposals as they effect specific schools.)

Sheriff Acts On Gambling

The war on gambling in the Washington area moves into another sector today, Charles County.

Sheriff Elmer M. Quade has ordered a general "crackdown" on gambling of every sort in the county beginning today. He said he is acting to forestall the shift into his county of gamblers driven out of Prince Georges and St. Mary's.

The sheriff said his deputies had been instructed to seize slot machines or other gambling devices found in operation. They also will move against any other type of gambling operator, "big or little," he declared.

Charles County merchants are taking his warning seriously. Slot machines are being converted from the type that pays cash to free play machines. Those that cannot be converted are being removed, observers reported.

'Startling' Soviet Atom News Hinted

London Paper Says Russia's Attitude May Be Based on Progress in Research

London, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The newspaper Sunday Times featured in its early edition today an article from its New York correspondent suggesting that Russia's attitude in the United Nations Assembly might be due to progress it had made in the field of atomic energy.

Without explanation, the article was killed in later editions.

Correspondent O. H. Brandon wrote:

"Russia's irreconcilable attitude toward the United States, I have reason to believe, is based on the great progress the Soviet has made in the development of atomic energy. I understand that in the next few days an announcement will be made by Moscow regarding Russia's progress in the field of atomic development—an announcement designed to startle the world.

"The Kremlin probably believes that such a disclosure of Russia's atomic sources would have a profound effect on American foreign policy, which it thinks is 'tough' largely because the United States Government believes that it alone possesses the 'know how' required to manufacture atomic bombs."

The correspondent quotes "well informed quarters" as predicting that a Russian announcement on atomic energy progress would coincide with a General Assembly discussion of atomic energy control.

Falls Church Fiesta Concludes

Approximately 1500 persons last night attended the "History of Falls Church" pageant climaxing the three-day Falls Church Fall Fiesta.

The pageant, written by Mrs. Eleanor Lee, was presented by a local cast at Crossman's Field on Lee hwy. near Roosevelt st. It depicted the history of Falls Church from Indian times.

Proceeds from the pageant and other fiesta events will go toward purchase of land for a town park. C. F. Blanding, park committee chairman was unable last night, however, to estimate the amount raised.

Edward C. Knowse, Falls Church planning commission chairman, said the fiesta was "a tremendous community success," beyond all expectation. Nearly 800 of those at last night's pageant had to stand for the performance.

During the afternoon, about 300 persons toured nine historic colonial homes in Falls Church and were entertained at tea at the end of the tour at Walnut Hill, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arnold on Annandale rd.

This, then, is the kind of car you've always dreamed of owning. How about making that dream come true?

The first move is up to you. Take your pick of ten smart models, and get in a firm order now, with or without a car to trade.

Amateur Life Stirs

Alexandria Folk Act at Gadsby's

By Richard L. Coe

WITH THE TURNING leaves and the Redskins' first game comes another sure sign of fall—amateur life is stirring.

Tonight sees the Little Theater of Alexandria raise the curtain of Gadsby's Tavern on the second in an annual plan of revivals. And other nonprofessional groups are getting to work, too.

The Alexandrians' have a unique setting in Gadsby's Tavern and their production last year of David Garrick's "The Lying Valet" was so successful they're going to try to make yearly productions of Revolutionary War plays.

For Gadsby's often played host to George Washington and his family. In his diary of 1768 there's a notation: "Tickets for Col. and Mrs. Washington and the two children came to 2 pounds, 12 shillings, 6 pence." Remembering those days, the players appear not only on the stage, but greet you at the door with a lantern, register you with Ye Host and decorate the old hostelry as hostesses, serving maids, orange girls and link boys.

Adding to the make-believe will be programs in ye olde style, on which the latter day "s" becomes "f," and a note is appended. "It is hoped no Gentleman will take it ill that they cannot poffibly be admitted behind the scenes."

Alexandria makes much of these revivals, with the social set out in full force. Fred and Helen Todd are the producers for this week's offering, another Garrick "afterpiece"—"Miss in Her Teens or A Medley of Lovers." Andrew Nillies is directing and we'll tell you more about the play later in the week.

New Alexandria Playhouse

Another Alexandria venture is in the works under the management of Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of famed Gen. "Billy." This is the Alexandria Playhouse, being sponsored by Alexandria's Recreation Department.

With such official city backing, this is in keeping with Virginia's State subsidy of Abingdon's Barter Theater. Miss Mitchell hopes to have a professional nucleus for the playhouse, with an amateur organization prepping players for the senior group.

A Children's Theater and a Tenn Age Dramatic Club also are on Miss Mitchell's agenda. Until the Playhouse can prepare its own building, it will use the recreation building at 1605 Cameron st. and Murphy's new auditorium.

Local Casting Underway

Coming back to the capital, the Players' Club of the Calvary Baptist Church is planning a production of "You Can't Take It With You." Final tryouts will be held tomorrow night at 8 in Woodward Hall at the church, 8th and H sts. nw.

Director Delight Williamson Holt, Calvary's director of dramatics, says that new members will be welcome regardless of personal creed or church affiliation. James H. Austin is president of the club, which holds weekly meetings each Tuesday.

Also coming to life after the summer holidays is the Washington Workshop theater, which is starting a file of Washington actors available for productions. Those interested are asked to report Wednesday or Thursday evenings between 8 and 9:30 at 2020 Massachusetts ave., fourth floor. For further information telephone ADams 2309.

'Kiss of Death' Returns

As Leo Brady advised you (while this department was on its blessed vacation), "Kiss of Death" is a swell picture.

We finally caught up with this one on its return to the Columbia and found ourself viewing faces in the street afterwards with grave suspicion. Yes, you've seen the story before, but the treatment is so fine you feel you're watching something completely new.

Ben Hecht's and Charles Lederer's screenplay is taut, imaginative and has a grasp of human understanding you seldom find on the Hollywood production belt. They and Director Henry Hathaway make superb use of silence, a trick that seems all but forgotten in these days of massive musical scores.

And the playing is superb, particularly that of Richard Widmark, whose sneering, cruel killer will become a screen classic. The only sad thing about such an incisive performance is that Widmark probably will be made to repeat it for years. But "Kiss of Death" is a movie to see.

GALLANT LASS—Gypsy Markoff is one of those who make the news who tonight will be singing for the men who distribute it. Gypsy, who's appearing at the Balalaika, will be singing at the Statler for the Interstate Circulation Managers' Association, along with the Statler's Morton Downey, the King Cole's Dona Mason and the 400's Kenny Sims. Though three of her fingers are still paralyzed from the Clipper crash which took 23 lives at Lisbon in '43, Gypsy has fought her way back to the top as an accordion wizard

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Few Press Meetings Held by Gen. Marshall

By Drew Pearson

One thing General Marshall hasn't learned in his difficult role as Secretary of State is the importance of keeping the American public informed. Not only has he abandoned the daily press conferences of previous Secretaries of State, but his Undersecretary, Wall Street banker Bob Lovett, has ordered a news blackout which helps to mystify rather than clarify the issues Marshall should want the public to understand.

Mr. LaGuardia

Twenty-odd years ago, Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes began a policy of meeting the press once a day. At times he even held conferences twice a day. Thus began a period of genuinely frank and open diplomacy. Other Republican Secretaries of State—Frank B. Kellogg, Henry L. Stimson—followed suit. So also for a while did Cordell Hull. However, because of illness, Hull's conferences gradually lapsed.

Jimmie Byrnes held conferences intermittently, but now Marshall has suspended them almost altogether. Instead of daily meetings, his press conferences can be counted on the fingers of two hands. At first this could be chalked up to inexperience. New at the game, Marshall was not familiar with various foreign questions, felt he couldn't talk about them to the press. But now that he has the reins firmly in his hand, Marshall still shuns the old Republican tradition of regular press conferences.

Note—Frank B. Kellogg used to say that he profited more from press conferences than the press, because the barrage of newspapermen's questions kept him in tune with the Nation's thinking.

Marshall Assails Russia

Secretary Marshall's opening statement at the United Nations, castigating Russia and the veto, was the most carefully written of his life. It was rewritten five times.

At first the speech was milder. This was on the advice of State Department Counselor "Chip" Bohlen, former interpreter between Stalin and FDR, who though critical of Russia, shies away from rough tactics.

But after Marshall got to New York, the speech was rewritten again with the cooperation of Herschel Johnson, United States deputy delegate to the U. N., who has had to suffer the slings and arrows of Gromyko's scorn, and who doesn't believe in pulling punches. Salient portions of the speech were then radioed to the USS Missouri for Truman's approval.

NOTE—Marshall, though a military man, also can be a great phrase-maker. He and Churchill were flying the Atlantic after the conference with Roosevelt, when Churchill, himself one of the greatest phrase-makers of this generation, tired of writing an announcement of Allied policy for the Mediterranean. Marshall took over the job, came up with a statement which Churchill said was better than his own.

Brazen Censorship

Long-established rule in Government agenices is that the press and public are entitled to have full information regarding the transfers and salaries of all Government officials. When an official is transferred from one post to another in peacetime—whether it be an Ambassador, major general or stenographer, the public is entitled to the facts.

Not so, however, under the State Department's new hush-hush rules of secrecy.

The other day this columnist queried the State Department's information bureau—which gets several hundred thousand dollars from the taxpayers to keep the public informed—regarding the number of Americans transferred from the American Embassy in New Delhi, India, since July. This was a simple routine question involving no high secrets or complicated research. After waiting one day and after three telephonic reminders, howver, the State Department's information bureau replied that it could not supply the information.

This is the first time in this columnist's many years of covering the State Department that secrecy has been carried to this extreme.

Probably this is the reason why: After Henry Grady, new U. S. Ambassador to India, arrived at New Delhi, his Counselor of Embassy Howard Donovan, immediately began transferring his friends from the United States to jobs under him in the Embassy in India. Donovan was quite brazen about this, wrote letters to friends telling them exactly how to get jobs, and to make vacancies for them he also sent a cable firing six stenographers and clerks already on duty in New Delhi.

Some of the clerks and stenographers had been on duty only a short time. When they were transferred by Donovan, it meant that the taxpayer bore the considerable cost of sending personnel to India and then brining them back again. Furthermore Donovan dismissed the six after he had been at the Embassy such a short time that obviously he could not have known their qualifications.

That is why the State Department violated long-established Government precedent in suppressing news regarding the transfers from New Delhi. Wall Street banker Undersecretary Lovett, apparently believes in using the same tactics in the State Department that he does in private business. Only difference is that the taxpayers don't subsidize his private business.

Merry-Go-Round

Henry Morgenthau really lets his hair down in his forthcoming diary being published in Colliers . . . The country has got used to rows among Democrats, but apparently Republicans are human also. Michigan's Clare Hoffman and Indiana's Forrest Harness were so jealous over which should investigate the Public Housing Administration that Hoffman sent sleuths to Public Housing with instructions to report any of Harness' men who tried to muscle in on Hoffman's probe.

GOP Bean Soup

Senator Owen Brewster of Maine has joined the chorus of GOP leaders calling upon the American people to curtail their consumption of critical foods.

In a Senate press conference Brewster refused to debate the question of rising food costs, but insisted that prices would drop to reasonable levels if food were not exported.

"I was addressing a Republican rally at McClure, Pa.," Brewster said by way of illustration, "where 10,000 Republican ate a 25-cent meal consisting of bean soup and crackers."

"Senator," asked United Press reporter Elizabeth Wharton, "don't you think 25 cents is a bit high for a bowl of bean soup?"

Bill to Clean City Figured At $4,173,100

By James Ficken
Post Reporter

Growing Washington will need $4,173,100 in fiscal 1949 to keep its streets clean and dispose of its refuse—$434,400 more than it will spend this fiscal year.

This is the estimate made by William A. Xanten, City Refuse Superintendent, in the 1949 budget request for his department, released for publication today by the Commissioners.

To these estimates must be added money for snow removal assigned to the Refuse Department from the highway fund each year. This year's amount will be $45,000, Xanten said.

Much of the increase will be used to make capital improvements, as follows:

Buy land and build a new Northwest garage (cost: $72,600). Plans call for acquiring additional land adjacent to the garage at 9th and O sts. nw., dismantling the garage, and building a new one.

Begin construction of a new refuse transfer station at New Jersey ave. and K st. se.; a garage and shops building, and a third District incinerator at West Virginia ave. and Mount Olivet rd. ne. (total cost: $573,500).

Plans for these buildings are "practically completed," Xanten stated. Authority has been granted to arrange for construction contracts, he added, and bids will be opened in the near future.

Plan and build two street cleaning tool houses (cost: $16,000) to replace inadequate temporary quarters rented from private owners.

Install fly ash control equipment at Georgetown incinerator (Cost: $15,000). (Georgetown citizens have protested that fly ash from the incinerator causes damage to their property.

Xanten also requested $30,000 to repair a seawall near the garbage reduction plant at Cherry Hill, Va. Potomac River storms, he explained, have cut away the land to such an extent that a railroad siding and unloading crane are imperiled. Eventually, even the main buildings will be in danger of having the ground washed from under them.

Truman Seen Ready to Act In Calif. Row

By the United Press

President Truman is reported about ready to step into the long-standing dispute between James Roosevelt, California State Democratic Chairman, and Edwin F. Pauley, California national committeeman.

Their feud, coupled with the "Wallace-for-President" boom of Robert Kenny, former California attorney general, has divided the State Democratic organization sharply.

Unless the breach is healed, national Democratic officials are fearful the State will fall to the Republican column in the 1948 presidential election.

Both Pauley and Roosevelt are in town, and Democratic sources in Congress say that Mr. Truman intends to call them to the White House to see if something can't be done about settling their differences.

It is known that Roosevelt is anxious to run for office, and some quarters are saying that Mr. Truman may be willing to promise him full Administration support in some future campaign—perhaps for the California governorship—in return for his cooperation with Pauley now.

Of all the leaders of the warring California factions, Pauley, long-time treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, is the closest to Mr. Truman. He was an original Truman supporter at the 1944 convention in Chicago. The President, in turn, stood by him stanchly in his unsuccessful fight for nomination as Undersecretary of the Navy 18 months ago.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 21.—Navy's coaches are an enlightened lot today, but not necessarily enthusiastic. They got a big look at their boys in blue and gold yesterday in a bruising three-hour scrimmage with the University of Washington Huskies, and then they got a look at the Sunday papers.

POVICH

Down Berkeley way, the University of California whacked the Santa Clara Broncos, 33 to 7, which was something to capture Navy's interest. The Midshipmen are next on California's schedule. Next Saturday, in fact. And back East, at State College, Pa., Penn State was socking Washington State yesterday, 27 to 6. Navy also has a date with Penn State.

"As soon as they get on Navy's schedule, they start turning out tough football teams," observed Head Coach Tom Hamilton.

NAVY CAN BE TOUGH, too, however, at least as long as Hamilton can keep his big boys in the contest. His first team ripped through the University of Washington in that marathon skirmish that saw the two schools blast each other for 180 minutes. It was all very informal, but informative, too.

Even without key man Reaves Baysinger in action at quarterback (lame leg). And even with Pistol Pete (the same) also missing from their No. 1 backfield, Navy was potent. The Middies rattled and banged over the ground to two touchdowns before the first team was withdrawn in favor of teams Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5.

It's pretty clear now that big Bill Hawkins, a straight-up runner in the fullback job, will be the work horse back of the Navy team. Any laggardly Navy lineman in front of him get a free ride. Ralph Welch, Washington coach, said of Hawkins, "He doesn't pay any attention to the fact that it's supposed to be tougher inside our 20-yard line.

"And Pete Williams' left halfback job with Navy is not quite as secure as it was last week. Little Billy Earl, 160-pound flash back, who is supposed to be strictly an outside runner, was punching through the middle as well yesterday. Behind Navy's first-string line he went well. He threw a touchdown pass against Army last year, you remember. He may not start the California game, but he won't be long on the bench.

But what went on overhead when the Huskies had the ball was enough to panic the Navy coaches. The Middies were faked out of position repeatedly, and the Washington ends were grabbing passes all over the lot, and Hamilton right now would like to outlaw the forward pass as part of the game.

"It will be murder at Berkeley next Saturday if we are not smarter on pass defense," moaned Navy's head coach. "My best offensive backs are my best pass defenders, and they may have to play 60 minutes. If they get any rest, it will have to be when we have the ball. It looks as if I can't afford to keep 'em out of there when we're on defense."

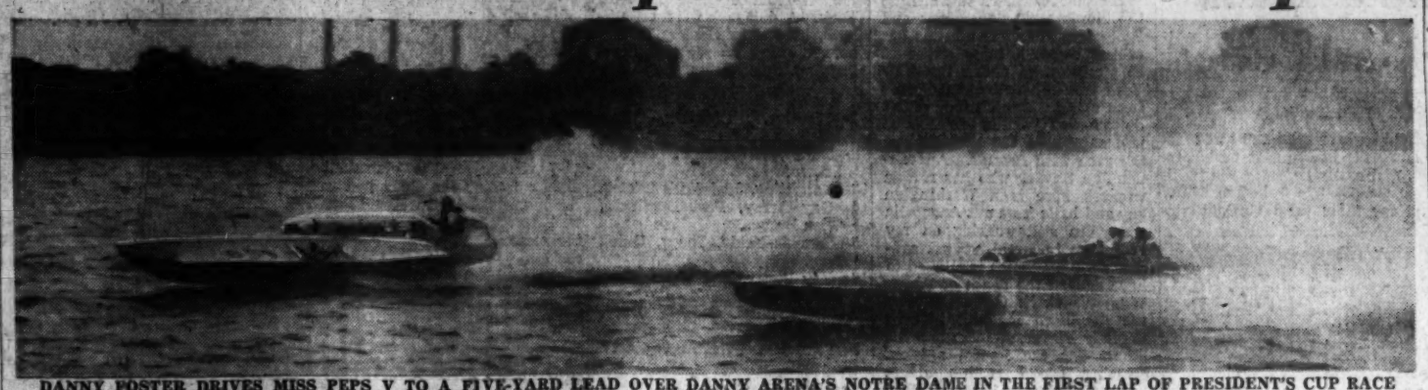
THERE WAS ONE comforting item, though. Baysinger and Williams, who were on the bench throughout yesterday's scrimmage, are the top pass defenders in Hamilton's backfield. Navy will look better when they are in there roaming on defense. They wrecked Army's passing game in the second half last November. Anyway, Hamilton doubts if he'll see a better passing team all season than the Huskies with Wende and Austin pitching for them.

What Navy did uncover yesterday to its satisfaction was a passel of smart little backs—Bernie Moore, Bobby Aillet, Billy Eary and Duff Arnold. The pity is, they're not bigger. Even behind the third and fourth lines they scampered against the big Washington team. And Navy coaches are wondering, too, if they haven't come up with another clever forward passer in Freddie Gralow, who was hitting receivers with his pitches consistently.

"Right now, I'd say we have one and a half good football teams, of the size you need to win in good company," says Hamilton. "Anything less than two and one half teams doesn't figure to get you by. But some of our little guys have shown me more than I dared to hope. If they're really that good, we may be all right, nevertheless."

Hamilton today was awaiting the return of his scouts, Eddy Erdelatz and Johnny Wilson, from the California game. "They will bring back a lot of helpful notes, I know," said Hamilton. "But nothing quite so informative as that 33-7 score by which California beat Santa Clara. If we are taken, it won't be by surprise."

Foster Takes Cup in Clean Sweep



DANNY FOSTER DRIVES MISS PEPS V TO A FIVE-YARD LEAD OVER DANNY ARENA'S NOTRE DAME IN THE FIRST LAP OF PRESIDENT'S CUP RACE

THIS IS A PORTION OF THE 100,000 PEOPLE WHO JAMMED THE RAILING ALONG THE POTOMAC TO SEE THE PRESIDENT'S CUP REGATTA

Miss Peps V Wins Before 100,000

Miss Great Lakes Forced to Quit

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Twenty-nine year-old Danny Foster, former Army pilot, from Oakland, Calif., and the red, white and blue hulled Miss Peps V., owned by the Dossin Brothers of Detroit, completed the first clean sweep in power boat racing history yesterday as they sped to victory in the Gold Cup class of the President's Cup Regatta on the Potomac River.

Dan Foster

More than 100,000 spectators saw Foster follow up his victory of Saturday in the first heat of the feature race with thrilling triumphs in the second and third heats yesterday to clinch the President's cup.

Foster and Miss Peps V. had teamed to win the Gold Cup Classic at Jamaica, N. Y., and the National Sweepstakes at Redbank, N. J., earlier in the year. They are the first ever to win all three big races in a single year.

Two-Boat Affair

Yesterday's two heats were practically two-boat races all the way, with Danny Arena, at the wheel of Herbert Meaderson's Notre Dame, providing the opposition.

Miss Great Lakes, the Albion Fallon entry, driven by Bandmaster Guy Lombardo, suffered a broken propeller shaft and shattered rudder in the first lap of the second heat, and had to withdraw. Miss Great Lakes had taken second in the Saturday heat and was leading Miss Peps V by 175 yards when she broke down.

It was Lombardo's second bitter boating disappointment of the year.

In August, while driving his own craft, Tempo VI, in quest of his second straight Gold Cup championship at Jamaica, N. Y., he broke a sponson and was forced to withdraw in the third heat when his oil pressure failed. Peps V, with Foster at the wheel, came on to win.

The skies were partly cloudy as the 12-event program got under way, but a brisk wind that whipped across the Georgetown Channel course churned up swells and white caps that made driving perilous. As a result, speeds in each event were 10 to 20 per cent slower than those recorded on the first day.

The second heat of the gold cup race was a thriller all the way.

Foster Trails Lombardo

Lombardo, remembering that a slow start on Saturday was instrumental in his defeat, caught Foster napping and left the Oakland veteran 10-yards behind at the post.

He was out for the easiest kind of win, and by the first turn, was ahead of Foster by 60 yards. He executed a perfect turn, and thundering down the backstretch, increased his lead to 175-yards.

Then suddenly, his motor was heard to sputter. Miss Great Lakes reared on her stern, there was an explosive sound, perhaps a backfire, and the Fallon boat, with its owner in the cockpit, stopped dead.

Miss Peps and Notre Dame buzzed by, and continued to stage a great race the rest of the way, as Lombardo, Fallon and their craft were towed to pits.

Notre Dame, the smaller 850 horse power, Dusenberg engined boat passed Peps briefly on the backstretch of the second lap.

But he lost the lead on the third lap and trailed Peps the rest of the way to lose by 30 yards.

Peps, the 1700 horsepower Allison motored inboard, averaged 60.429 miles per hour, for the second heat.

Schaffer's Special, owned by Jack Schaffer of Detroit, and piloted by Albert D'Eath, was entered in the final heat, but was across the starting line late, and was never a threat.

Swings Wide At Turn

It was Peps in the lead by 5 yards at the finish of the first lap, and by 2 at the end of the second lap. Notre Dame pulled abreast on the backstretch of the third lap, and then made the slip that cost her the race.

She swung wide at the turn into the homestretch. Her motor faltered, and by the time she had regained her course, she was 60 yards behind. Peps, continuing at a steady clip, rode home by that margin, her average speed 61.65 miles per hour.

Betty V, red hulled 225 cubit inch hydroplane, clinched the trophy in her division by winning the third heat with Vincent Schwing of Baltimore, behind the wheel.

Betty V was third during the first half of the race, then pulled up second. Going into the last turn, Lazy Day, which was leading, conked out, and Betty V came in first.

The All-Washington Open event was won by Monk II, orange and white Class E runabout, driven by George Brinkerhoff of College Park, Md.

Braves Halt Dodger Bid To Cinch Flag

Brooklyn, Sept. 21 (AP).—The pennant hungry Brooklyn Dodgers, who arrived here two days ago from a successful road trip ready to nail the 1947 National League pennant to the Ebbets Field mast, were still seeking that all-import "clincher" victory following their second successive beating by the Boston Braves today 4-0. A disappointed crowd of 34,123 saw the Braves even the season's series with the Dodgers at 10 games each.

This time it was Lefty Warren Spahn who threw the monkey wrench into the Dodgers celebration plans. Spahn duplicated Johnny Sain's feat of yesterday by handcuffing the Brooks with only six hits to register his twentieth victory of the season.

The defeat, together with the washout of St. Louis' scheduled game against the Chicago Cubs, cut the Dodgers' first place lead over the Cardinals to 7½ games. The Brooks are idle tomorrow while the Cards play day and night games with the Cubs in St. Louis. The Brooks, who need one more victory or St. Louis defeat to mathematically clinch the flag, have six games left to play. The Cards have nine.

Penna's 281 Wins Atlanta Golf; Worsham Has 292

Atlanta, Sept. 21 (AP).—Toney Penna, pulled his game together on the final holes today to capture the $10,000 North Fulton open golf tournament with a 281, one stroke in front of Jimmy Demaret.

Penna, veteran from Cincinnati, teed off today with a five-stroke margin over Demeret. After 15 holes they were all square, but Penna, after having three-putted the 1st and 13th holes and missed a two-footer at 15, almost birdied the 16th and did birdie the 17th. He and Demaret parred the others from the 15th in, Penna finished with 73, two over par, and Demaret with 69.

Lew Worsham of Washington, the U. S. open champion and premeet favorite, fired a final 76 for 292 total and a tie for 18th place, to earn $153.

Gordon Ties Ted But Rain Voids It

Detroit, Sept. 21 (AP).—Joe Gordon, Cleveland second baseman, overtook Ted Williams in the American League home-run derby by smashing his thirtieth of the seson today in the second inning of the Indians' game with the Detroit Tigers, but rain which washed out the game in the fourth inning with the score tied at 2-all, erased the homer from the records.

The postponement lifted the Tigers into second place ahead of the Boston Red Sox, who lost to Washington. Cleveland and Detroit wind up the Briggs Stadium season for 1947 with a double-header Monday.

St. Ambrose Victor

Davenport, Ia., Sept. 21 (AP).—The St. Ambrose College football team sloshed through heavy mud this afternoon to come from behind and nip St. Mary's of Minnesota, 19-12.

Four Speed Marks Set in Trial Runs Before Cup Races

Four new speedboat records were set yesterday morning in one-mile trial runs before the President's Cup Regatta races on the Georgetown Channel of the Potomac River.

The first record to fall was in the 151-cubic-inch hydroplane class. Edison Hedges, Atlantic City lawyer, covered the course in 81.264 miles per hour, eclipsing the 65.766 standard he set in Washington in 1946.

Mrs. Mildred Foulke of Essex, Md., drove the Saganna IX at 52.555 miles per hour to break the record for Class C racing runabouts of 50.598, set by her husband, Frank Foulke, in Jim Jam at New Martinsville, W. Va., on September 22, 1941.

D. J. Murphy, jr., of Philadelphia broke his old record of 37.501 miles per hour for Class F service runabouts, set in Dee Jay II at Ocean City, N. J., on May 30, 1941. In the same craft, he recorded 41.130 yesterday. A few minutes before, William Kammerer of Baltimore had also broken the old mark in Bambino Pat with a 39.979 performance.

Howard Dunn of Annapolis set another standard when he set his Class D service runabout, Crybaby, over the measured mile at 47.906 miles per hour.

Tommy Bell 9-5 Favorite To Whip Hursey Here Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

For the first time since last February, when he dumped Billy Arnold at Uline Arena, Smuggy Hursey finds himself on the short end of the odds as he goes against Tommy Bell in a scheduled 10-rounder at Griffith Stadium tonight.

The classy Youngstown (Ohio) welterweight contender is a 9-5 favorite to defeat the show-boating Washington scrapper, something no one has accomplished since Bee Bee Washington decisioned him last September.

Bell is by far the toughest hurdle Hursey has been called on to scale since he vaulted into the local limelight with victories over Washington, Aaron Perry and Danny Kapilow this summer, and there's a general feeling that he's in over his head against Bell.

Thumping Tommy has battled the best in the welterweight and middleweight divisions and is currently rated No. 2 contender for Ray Robinson's 147-pound crown.

George Gainsford, Robinson's manager, will be in the house tonight watching the battle with more than just a passing interest. He's debating a $15,000 offer to match Robinson against the winner of tonight's fuss and if he says yes the scrap will be staged at Griffith Stadium October 13.

The contrasting styles of the contestants promises a rousing evening. Hursey is an ever-moving, crouching operator who loves to bore in and fire away. Bell, who will weigh 149, is a stand-up, straight-shooting stylist who packs a wallop in either glove.

Bell

Hursey

It's easily the best match of the year. Hursey has drawn over $175,000 in his four Griffith Stadium fights this summer and should pass the $200,000 mark tonight. Indications are that a crowd of about 8000 will sit in and pay approximately $35,000 for the privilege. It may even do better than that, which would not be frowned upon by Goldie Ahearn, the Liberty A. C. promoter who arranged the tussle. Bell time is 8:30.

A strong supporting lineup tonight offers a trio of six rounders bringing together Sonny Boy West vs. Johnny Eddington and Jerry Mekler vs. Morris Nelson, featherweights, and Al Wright vs. Fischer, middleweights. Elkins Brother and Eddie Roberts, heavyweights, open with a four.

Steelers Beat Dudley's Lions By 17 to 10

Pittsburgh, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The National Football League opened its 1947 season today as the Pittsburgh Steelers took advantage of two enemy fourth-period fumbles to beat the Detroit Lions, 17 to 10, before a crowd of 36,374.

The Lions, sparked by the league's champion ground gainer, Bill Dudley, who was out to show the Steelers they made a mistake in trading him away, held a 10-7 margin after three periods. But in the final session, it was Detroit that made the mistakes and Pittsburgh that capitalized on them.

The big break came when Lion Clyde Leforce fumbled at midfield. Joe Repko, hefty Steeler sub tackle, scooped up the loose ball and ran all the way for a touchdown. Joe Glamp converted to give Pittsburgh a 14-10 lead.

A few minutes later, Roy Zimmerman of the Lions bobbled the ball on his own 45 and End Val Jansante of Pittsburgh picked it up and ran it to the Lions' 33. The Detroit line stiffened and threw back the Steelers' attempts to gain on the ground, but Glamp came in and booted a field goal that clinched the game.

Dudley led a first-period drive of 80 yards for Detroit's first and only touchdown, scoring the six points himself.

Pittsburgh was twice thrown back in the second period, Dick Stoval intercepting a pass to end a 64-yard drive and Merv Pregulman intercepting another pass. But the Steelers finally broke through for a touchdown before the half ended, the tally coming on a pass from Walt Slater to Jansante.

Dudley led the Lion drive in the third period, which ended in their final score of the day, a 15-yard field goal by Zimmerman.

Touchdown Spree in 4th Avoids Rout For Locals

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 21.—Washington's Redskins made the switch from downright awful to positively brilliant in one easy quarter today but it wasn't enough to stave off a 31-21 setback by the Green Bay Packers in Municipal Stadium.

Every one of their points the 'Skins scored in that quarter—the last—before a crowd of 20,186 admitted they'd lost their third in four preseason exhibitions.

With Washingtonians galore in the turnout of 18,186 paid, witnessing the third of a series of seven exhibitions for charity funds of Baltimore and Washington Variety Clubs, the Redskins were an exceedingly sour-looking gang as the final period opened.

Thirty-one points behind, and with even the passes of Slinging Sam Baugh getting them nowhere, the Redskins were being declared horrible by their most devout worshipers. But suddenly they rolled.

On the first play of the final session the Packers were in possession on their own 47. It was fourth down when Ralph Tate, reserve halfback from Oklahoma A. & M., went into the line, seeking 4 yards and a first down. But he fumbled. The ball bounced crazily and finally big Ed Cifers of the 'Skins scooped it up.

Baugh Swings Into Action

The 240-pound tackle, a converted end, went straight down the field for 42 yards and the score that broke Washington's scoreless state. The effort seemed all the Redskins needed.

Green Bay had only brief use of the ball until Washington again struck on a 60-yard drive that was mostly Bob Nussbaumer and Baugh. The first piled through tackle for 12 yards. Vince Pacewic added 5 and the remaining 43 yards was used up in a pass from Baugh to Nussbaumer. The latter took the ball on the 3 over Walt Schlinkman's head and thundered into the end zone.

Scampering Eddie Saenz brought the 'Skins their final score with 6½ minutes of play left. He sprinted 6 yards to the Packer 33, rested while Baugh tossed 12 yards to Joe Duckworth and Pacewic added 2 yards through the line. Then, from the 18, Saenz went into right tackle, reversed his field beautifully, piled through two jam-ups of Packer players, and finally found his way over. Dick Poillon added his third straight extra point.

Tribe on March Again

The Skins continued to threaten after that but their deficit was too great. Once they gained possession on the 29, when Ki Aldrich recovered Ted Fritsch's fumble but that chance was killed by one of two passes the Packers intercepted.

At the end the Indians were marching again down to the 29, where Saenz grabbed Baugh's 16-yard toss and almost broke away.

It was a former Redskin, Jack Jacobs, who put his former mates in bad shape in the first place. Smith started the Packer buildup to a 31-0 edge by sprinting 53 yards for a touchdown after 7 minutes of the first period. Before the period was over Jacobs had hurled the first of three touchdown passes to Clyde Goodnight, this one for 17 yards and in the second quarter he repeated for scores on 71 and 38 yard plays.

To clinch matters Fritsch kicked

Scarborough Hurls 3-Hitter, Nats Shutout Bosox, 3-0

Boston, Sept. 21.—If the Nats had any ideas that Rae Scarborough had given up hope his mates would score enough runs for him to break his eight-game losing streak, the righthander crossed them up today in the finale with the Red Sox. He held the 1946 champions to three hits and shut them out, 3 to 0.

It was one of his best pitching jobs, but not satisfied with that, his own single started the rally in the third inning which resulted in the first two Nat runs.

The first hit off Rae was made after two were out in the fourth inning when Sam Mele dropped a single behind second base. It started to look like a one-hitter as the eighth rolled around, but after a pinch hitter for Pitcher Joe Dobson had gone out, Merrill Combs, rookie third baseman, got the second single. It was a grounder Johnny Sullivan should have stuck in his hip pocket, but it evaded his glove as he reached for the ball. The third hit was Ted Williams' clothesline single to right center in the ninth.

Only twice in the game did the Sox get men beyond first base, though Rea walked four men. The first time was in the Boston fourth when Scarborough was in danger of losing his shutout. He got the first two hitters out, then walked Bob doerr. It was here that Mele singled and the pair advanced on a wild pitch. Rae also walked Jake Jones, but the danger ended when Eddie McGah skied out to left.

The other time was in the eighth with Combs on second after his single and an infield out. Dom DiMaggio drove the best hit ball the Sox tagged all day to left field but Sherry Robertson chased back and speared the ball with his gloved hand against the wall.

Williams never got beyond first in the ninth after he singled. Doerr fanned, Mele's skier was hauled down by Gil Coan and Jones forced Ted at second.

Colts Trampled by Cleveland Browns, 28-0, Before 44,000

Champions Tally Thrice In 1st Period

Cleveland, Sept. 21 (AP).—Cleveland's powerful and precision-packed Browns rolled up three fast touchdowns in the first period today, and easily defeated the Baltimore Colts, 28 to 0, before 44,257 fans for their third straight victory in defense of their All-America Football Conference championship.

The scintillating champions scored three touchdowns on a dozen plays at the start, and then the regulars, except for short periods, sat on the bench and watched the second and third teams hold the Colts the rest of the way.

Automatic Otto Graham sparked the first marker as the Browns surged 67 yards in nine plays. The former Northwestern All-America tossed a 29-yard pass to Don Greenwood, followed with a 10-yarder to Dante Lavelli and a 14-yard toss to Bill Boedecker, and then sent big Marion Motley through tackle for the score. The 2-yard plunge gave the Negro fullback his fifth touchdown in three contests.

On the second play after the next kickoff, Wilson Schwenk, Colt quarter, tried a pass from his 21, but Tommy Colella intercepted and went over without being touched.

The third touchdown was a "swifty," too. Graham took Steve Nemeth's punt on his own 45, tossed a lateral to Tony Adamle when trapped, and the fullback raced to the 15. Motley made nine, and Boedeker went the rest of the way.

At Marlboro.

Dear Folks:

Wayne Kendrick's suit against the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association stems out of the owner-trainers strike at Hagerstown. I notice the New York tracks have banned horses from other states but they didn't do so until Calumet's Armed was safely on the grounds for the race with Assault. Apprentice Joe Snyder who has ridden winners here is a Washington boy and hails from out Anacostia way. I'm still working on my campaign to guard against saddles slipping, which is alleged to have caused the death of Pappy Witmer. C. E. Crider skipped the Marlboro meeting to rest Comedy Player, Alhalon and his others for the Laurel session. Dancing Cloud is the oldest horse here at 15 years. The Jockeys Guild is having its first big dance next Saturday night at the Waldorf Astoria in New York. A delegation from Maryland, headed by Sammy Palumbo, is going up for the jitterbugging. See you on the rail.

BILL.

Brilliant 4th Period Averts Horrible Pasting for Redskins

a second-period field goal from the 25-yard line and added one extra point. Ward Cuff, former New York Giant placement ace, kicked the other three.

Baugh wasn't used by the Redskins until the start of the second half and this dispite the grimaces each pre-game pass cost him. His injured ribs, forcing him out of of last week's Bear game, were apparently ignored in an effort to give the assemblage what is wanted to see most—Sammy passing.

Early ni the third period be figured in the Redskins' 3½ minute possession of the ball without making a first down. Actually, the District of Columbia club tried eight plays during which they moved back and forth from their own 26 to their own 9. Penalties voided five plays before Jim Youell kicked out.

The Packers went to the Redskin 27 before Fritsch was stopped in a fourth-down try for 4 yards, and then Baugh began to shine. After a pair of first downs by Dick Todd, and on a defensive holding penalty, Baugh connected with Saenz for 15 yards and Duckworth for 25 up to the Packer 18. But there a bad pass from center was recovered by Bob Skoglund, the Notre Dame star.

In spite of their fancy final period, the Redskins will go into their N. F. L. opener next week in Philadelphia considerable of a mystery. While Smith and Tony Canadeo were tearing around the Tribe's ends, Washington was attending almost exclusively to a middle-of-the-line running offense.

Todd, Saenz and Rookie George Wilde, the sprinters, were sent through tackle almost as straight-away runners like Jack Jenkins. When Baugh got in there, however, the Redsinks needed little except more time than was left.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—The New York Yankees, who will be playing in their fifteenth World Seris when they meet Brooklyn's Dodgers, announced today that for the first time in their history they will sell standing room tickets in advance for the games at the Yankee Stadium.

Yankee officials said they were making the move because of an unprecedtned demand for tickets from all over the country and to save buyers from standing in long lines before each game. The Yankee Stadium, site of the first two games and the sixth anad seventh if necessary, lone has been sold out of reserved seats.

These standing-room tickets (general admission) will sell for $4 including tax (plus 35 cents for postage and registry) and will be sold for either one of the stadium games or for all four. They may be either purchased at the Yankee ticket offices or by mail.

(The Yank offices are at the Yankee Stadium, Bronx, N. Y., and A. G. Spalding store, 518 5th ave., New York.)

Mail orders, the Yanks said, should be addressed to the "Yankee Ticket Manager, Yankee Stadium, Bronx, N. Y."

Those sending mail orders, the Yanks added, should specifically state they are for standing-room ticwets.

Subsurface Bomb Power to Be Tested

By International News Service

Army engineers, looking to the day when important defense structures are driven underground by aerial bombing, prepared yesterday to test subsurface charges up to one-fifth the power of the atom bomb against buried installations.

Gen. Wheeler

At the same time, Army Ordnance announced that the earth is to be used as protective storage for some 200,000 pounds of live high explosive bombs at Savanna Ordnance Depot, Ill.

Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, Chief of Engineers, said the underground blasting will be a continuance of work started before the war—work that proved exceedingly valuable in blasting Germans and Japs from cover.

Two types of structures will be exposed to subterranean explosions, ordinary shelters dug in earth and deep tunnels cut in solid rock.

Explosive charges in the tests, to be conducted at Dugway Proving Grounds, Utah, range from 320 to 320,000 pounds of TNT. The largest charge is calculated to have one-fifth the explosive strength of the atom bomb.

The charges will be set off at depths ranging from 7 to 70 feet, with the heaviest blasts at the lowest levels. Target structures in earth will be simple excavations with sidewalls but no tops or bottoms.

Also to be tested are heavily walled structures such as might be built to house command posts, and windowless surface buildings designed to protect workers and soldiers against atomic blast and radiation.

In the rock tests, tunnels will be constructed at depths varying from 125 to 175 feet, and TNT will be detonated overhead in an effort to determine the most effective top covering for such structures.

In the bomb burial program ordnance officers hope that underground storage will relieve a shortage of igloo and earth-wall types of bomb arsenals. All detonating mechanism will be removed from the bombs and they will be covered with a minimum of 3 feet of earth. Eventually, after the earth has settled, blacktop paving will be spread over the pits.

Army Says More Service Families May Go Overseas

The Army announced yesterday that more wives and children will be permitted to join servicemen sent to Europe for occupation duty, as the result of improved transportation and housing.

The dependents either will accompany the men to Europe or follow them closely, it said. Families of men already in Europe are being sent overseas on the basis of priority lists submitted by theater commanders.

The Army warned that it may be necessary "in some instances" to quarter dependents temporarily in dependent centers in Europe until appropriate quarters can be obtained at duty stations.

Senate Unit Investigates 'Buying' of Promotions

Postoffice Dept. Officials Slated To Be Questioned In Langer Probe

By Jerry Kluttz

The use of "pressure" to get promotions for a few favored employes is being investigated by the Senate Civil Service Committee. In fact, the committee is reported to be looking into several cases involving the "purchase" of promotions.

Kluttz

Chairman Langer is said to be interested in several cases where "undue influence" was used to get bigger and better jobs for several Postoffice employes. He plans an early public hearing on them. Postoffice officials will be called in for explanations.

CIVILIANS: The 200-odd civilians at Bolling Field are in an uproar. They have been told, unofficially, that soldiers will be brought in to replace them before the end of this year—a clear violation of the law if it's allowed to take place. The jobs of 50 veterans, many career employes, are at stake.

Official version of the story is that the field has only enough money to carry its civilian staff in the air installation office through February, and that at least 75 civilians must be fired unless additional funds are made available by the Army's Engineer Corps which operates the office. An Air Force survey team will visit the field tomorrow to examine the work and to recommend how much more money, if any, the agency is to get.

REVENUE: Another lay-off threatens Internal Revenue employes. The 20-million-dollar budget cut by Congress forced the agency to lay off 4400 employes and to abolish 2200 vacant jobs several months ago. But the cost of making in-grade and other promotions was not considered at that time. That cost runs into several millions, which must be offset, and that's why another lay-off is being debated.

However, Treasury officials take the view that promotion costs can be absorbed by not filling vacancies of those who quit, and by following a tight promotion policy. If they're wrong, the lay-off must be made.

CIVIL SERVICE: Its fourth regional office, to be moved back here in early December from Winston-Salem, N. C., will hire about 125 additional employes to work on the President's Federal worker loyalty program. In the central office here, only 325 are being hired of the 1400 needed on the new program. Each new employe is to be given a careful loyalty test.

PEOPLE: Howard W. Bordner has resigned as deputy director of corporation audits at General Accounting. His successor is Irwin S. Decker, a Massachusetts CPA and veteran of both wars . . . Daniel H. Schwartz, regional director here of CIO's left-wing United Public Workers, will be transferred to Michigan . . . At the Library of Congress, Archibald B. Evans was promoted to chief of the serials division on his forty-first anniversary as a Federal worker.

TIP: Insiders expect Edward E. Hunt to land a top job with that 12-man committee to study Government reorganization. Hunt, a State official, was the executive officer of several committees while Herbert Hoover was President. And since Hoover will be chairman of the reorganization group, he's again expected to call on Evans to help him.

FHA: Federal Housing has given lay-off notice to 163 employes, 100 in this city. Its business is at an all-time high, but a reduced budget forced the discharges.

Commissioner Franklin D. Richards said all the lay-offs were being made according to Civil Service rules. He promises to help discharged employes to get other jobs. On the other hand, several career veterans are protesting the lay-offs and will file appeals with Civil Service.

BUDGET: Two top civil servants have retired from the Budget Bureau. They are R. D. Vining, assistant chief of the estimates division, and Josiah L. Carr, an attorney in the same office. Vining gave 38 years of his life to Government work, 29 of it with the Navy. Carr, who started as a Patent Office clerk in 1897, developed numerous standard contract forms which are used by all Federal agencies.

AGRICULTURE: Dr. Omer W. Herrmann is the new assistant administrator of Agricultural Research Administration . . . CIVIL SERVICE has an exam open for radio engineers to fill jobs in Federal Communications Commission. The jobs pay $4149 to $4902 to start . . . CAREER: This is the day the Civil Service program to find jobs for the 1900 displaced career employes here will get under way. Placement of jobless accountants and auditors will start this afternoon.

DECISION: Civil Service has rejected an appeal from war service phone operators to hold a non-assembled test for them. The operators had a splendid point—that operators in nearby areas were graded on their education and experience, and weren't compelled to take a written test ordered for them.

But Civil Service now says all future phone operator exams will include a written test—and the new policy is to start with the exam here. Two-thirds of the hard-working operators here are war service.

St. Matthew's Day Celebrated By Washington Congregations

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Christianity's universality was emphasized yesterday by Dr. John Tracy Ellis, as many Greater Washington area congregations celebrated St. Matthew's Day.

Dr. Ellis

Dr. Ellis, associate professor in American Church History at Catholic University, preached at a solemn high mass at the Cathedral of St. Matthew the Apostile, honoring his feast day. The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop and administrator of the Washington and Baltimore Archdioceses, presided.

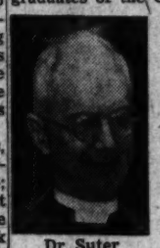
Father Ellis reminded 1500 worshipers that the principle of universality about which St. Matthew wrote, "triumped in America . . . and must always triump and endure if Christ's Church is to fulfill the mandate given to it by its founder." The Rev. William J. Sweeney, pastor of St. Ursula's Church, Baltimore, celebrated the mass.

Dr. Charles W. Sheerin told his Epiphany Episcopal congregation, 1317 G st. nw., that Matthew typified the ordinary folk who have been drawn to Christ's teachings through the centuries. The Gospel of St. Matthew, said Dr. Sheerin in his morning sermon, demonstrates that where Christianity is planted, "the values of human personality are preserved." Preaching last night on "The Government Worker Who Became A Saint," Dr. Sheerin pointed out that St. Matthew was a tax-collector of Capernaum, a city of Galilee. Since he was employed by the Roman government, Matthew belonged to the despised class of Jews called publicans.

Dr. Sheerin

Nurses at Cathedral

Dr. John Wallace Suter, dean of Washington Cathedral, addressed baccalaureat services there for graduates of the Garfield Hospital School of Nursing. Speaking at the evensong service, he said:



Dr. Suter

"The greatest gift which any nurse can bring to her patients is the gift of peace and of tranquillity amidst the turmoil of pain and worry. The best nurses embody and symbolize a tranquillity which is born of their own inner strength and authority above and beyond the traits of resourcefulness and accuracy, which are prerequisites of success in their profession."

Crime Rate Here Is High

crime reporting system after The Washington Post exposed widespread withholding from statistics of serious crimes.

The statistics prepared for the first half of 1946 were made up by the Washington police department. How much of the startling increase in crimes reported this year is due to an actual increase in crime, and how much to the police policy of "pocketing" cases cannot be determined.

During the past six months, Washington has had more burglaries than New York, with 2114; more cases of aggravated assault than Chicago, with 660; and more thefts under $50 than New York had for both grand larceny and petit theft. The New York figure is 3,743.

How the Nation's Capital changed in its crime rating in relation to all other United States cities over 100,000 population is shown by the fact that in five out of seven crime categories, Washington moved nearer the top of the Nation's list in incidence of crimes between the first half of 1946 and the first half of 1947.

Count on Murders

For the first six months of 1946, Washington was fifth in number of murders; now it is eleventh.

For the first six months of 1946, Washington was 13th in number of robberies; now it is seventh.

For the first six months of 1946, Washington was twelfth in number of aggravated assault cases; now it is fourth.

For the first six months of 1946 Washington was seventeenth in number of burglaries; now it is fourth.

For the first six months of 1946 Washington was ninth in number of grand larcenies; now it is seventh.

For the first six months of 1946 Washington was twelfth in number of petty thefts; now it is third.

For the first six months of 1946 Washington was tenth in number of autp thefts; now it is thirteenth.

Despite the increase in number of crimes reported in Washington, the incidence of crime in cities generally declined by 2.3 per cent during the first six months of this year as compared to the first half of 1946. However, the figures still were 12 per cent higher than those in the first six months of 1941.

In rural areas, the declining trend was reversed. A 7.5 per cent increase was noted throughout the Nation in crime in rural areas. This increase was made up of a 17.1 per cent jump in burglaries in rural areas as compared with a 2.1 per cent increase in urban areas.

Larceny and rape in rural areas both increased approximately 13 per cent, while larceny in urban areas increased 1.1 per cent, and rape 3.5 per cent. The crime of negligent manslaughter and murder showed a decrease in both rural and urban areas, with a 6.6 per cent drop in rural areas and a 10.8 per cent drop in urban areas.

Bauer Quits Council Race In Greenbelt

Mayor Drops Out To Be Free to Accuse Manager On Expenditures

New excitement was added to tomorrow's run-off election of town councilmen in Greenbelt, Md., by the withdrwaal yesterday of Mayor George F. Bauer as a candidate.

Bauer, one of eight candidates, said he wished to be free of political implications in accusing Town Banager James T. Gobbel of permitting illegal financial expenditures.

More than 1500 persons are expected to go to the polls in the town fire station tomorrow between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. to choose four town councilmen in the run-off election. An election was held last Tuesday, but only one of the 19 candidates, Thomas J. Canning, received the necessary majority for election.

With Bauer withdrawn, the seven top candidates who will vie for the four elective posts are Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington, Councilman Allen D. Morrison, Frank J. Lastner, David Granahan, George M. Eshbaugh, Albert Schaffer and Benjamin Goldfadden, former town recreation director.

Interest at New High

Interest in the election reached a new high as townspeople debated the latest angle—accusations that Town Manager Gobbel had ordered some excessive salary payments. The charges were made at a hastily called town council meeting Friday night. A move by Mayor Bauer for an immediate investigation was blocked by other councilmen who favored a delay until the new council takes office.

Gobbel said he will demand an investigation and "no one will have any doubt that I have acted in a perfectly proper manner."

He labeled the accusations as a move "to blacken my reputation and . . . a political issue." Not only has he "ever received any salary in excess of the amount officially authorized . . . but I am actually legally entitled to additional salary of $1173," he said.

Councilmen Paul Dunbar, Joseph Rogers and Morrison declared an impartial investigation should be held and not "a witch hunt to blacken a man's reputation."

Greenbelt "Disgraced Again"

Another open letter, signed by W. Earl Thomas, George E. Shaeffer, jr., Anthony Madden, Rueben K. Barrick, Sue Hazell, Arthur J. Plackett and Philip P. McGonagle also rallied to Gobbel's defense, saying, "Greenbelt has been disgraced again by a dirty political maneuver."

In a statement sworn to before a notary public, Mayor Bauer challenged Gobbel's claim he was entitled to an additional salary payment of $1173 and that he had never received any salary in excess of the amount authorized by town council.

As for Gobbel's claim that he had not ordered excessive salary payments, Bauer stated:

"I accuse Mr. Gobbel of ordering payments made in a greater amount than approved by council to the public health officer. I also accuse Mr. Gobbel of ordering payments to the town solicitor on the 1946 basis instead of the reduced 1947 budget recommendations made by Mr. Gobbel and approved by the council for the sum of $600."

Bauer said Gobbel continued to draw payments based on a higher 1946 salary until Bauer started his personal investigation in April, 1947, at which time and without Bauer's knowledge, he "refunded the sum of $481.53 by his personal check to the town."

At Friday's meeting, Gobbel said he was entitled to the higher salary on the basis of a percentage increase authorized by council to all town employes in 1946, which had never been rescinded. A budget adopted by the council effective January 1, 1947, cut certain town salary appropriations, including the town manager.

Parents Win School Strike

Baltimore, Sept. 21 (AP).—Baltimore County School Superintendent Raymond S. Hyson announced today that a booster pump would be installed at the Colgate Elementary School where parents last week organized a strike protesting insufficient water pressure, which they said resulted in unsanitary conditions.

Hyson said the booster was expected to restore the water supply to normal. The weak pressure last week forced closing of several lavatories and students drank from jugs of water instead of drinking fountains.

Methodists Urged to Back Unity

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt last night urged Methodist support for any further uniting of Protestant churches.

"Whether it is a union within the same family or a larger Protestant union, the Methodist Church, by conviction and loyalty to historic tradition, must lend its support," the bishop said at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw.

Bishop Holt, head of the St. Louis (Mo.) Methodist area and former president of the Federal Council of Churches, spoke at an American University-sponsored convocation conferring honorary degrees upon five leaders of world Methodism.

The service signalized the scheduled opening next Thursday of the Methodist Ecumenical Conference in Springfield, Mass. The visiting clerics occupied local Methodist pulpits at morning services yesterday. Bishop Holt is chairman of the Western Section of the Methodist Ecumenical Conference.

Recipients of honorary doctor of divinity degrees, presented by Robert V. Fletcher, American University board chairman, were:

The Rev. Oscar T. Olson, Cleveland, Ohio, secretary of the Methodist Ecumenical Council's Western Section; Bishop W. Y. Chen of China; the Rev. Gordon Cisco, secretary, United Church of Canada, and the Rev. H. G. Secomb, secretary, Australian General Conference. President Walter Brown, Victoria University, Toronto, received an honorary LL.D. degree. Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, read the citations.

Also participating in the convocation were Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, head of the Washington Methodist area; Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Church, and trustees of American University, who presented the candidates for degrees. The visiting clerics, en route to the Springfield parley, were guests of Dr. Douglass at a buffet supper last night at his home on the campus.

International Student House Cures Bias—Even Alabaman's

Nurtured by men and women who believe that in "every man the seed of God lies dormant or developing," an ideal that the world has sought for centuries is getting a foothold here in a polyglot haven at 1825 R st. nw.

As described yesterday by Ma Khin Myinb of Burma, otherwise known as "Bobbie," International Student House appears to contain "the whole world—and everyone in it seems a member of one family."

The roster of members' homes reads like the itinerary of a round-the-globe tour—Haiti, India, Trinidad, United States, Philippines, Belgium, Peru, Puerto Rico, Russia, Hawaii, Hungary.

And do the language barriers, cultural differences and local peculiarities keep these young folk from getting along?

Let a 24-year-old Alabaman, who admits to exposure to strong racial prejudice in his home State, say something about that.

"I was pretty prejudiced as a kid," Ray Monroe, a Georgetown University student, confided. "But after I got to be old enough to think, I never could reason prejudice out. Now some of my best friends are Negro boys."

What do I like particularly about this house?

"In this house you get to know people as they really are—instead of in the light of prejudice."

Simeon William George-Coker, a student of dentistry at Howard University, described his feelings about the place in this way:

"After I became a member, I found it was the best organization available for knowing and understanding human relationships. It could be a nucleus for the solution of world problems."

Simeon, who speaks perfect English, comes from Sierre Leone, in West Africa, which he described as similar in size to West Virginia.

Other enthusiasts for the castle-like dwelling—and what goes on inside it—are Haken Kinck of Norway; Youngswatt Amatayakul, a petite Washington University student from Siam, and Louis Delwart, 23, of Belgium, who speaks five languages and is now perusing Russian texts.

But activities in the House are not restricted to intellectual exercises. There are dances, teas, swimming parties and "nationality suppers."

The House is sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization whose members believe that "all our efforts to bring about peace will be abortive" if they do not spring from the maturing of "the seed of God" in all men. Purpose of the House is to "provide the right soil."

Christians Urged To Use Voluntary Food Rationing

The Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, jr., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Alexandria, yesterday urged Christians to adopt voluntary food rationing to save human lives and force down prices.

"I believe it is the duty of every Christian home to voluntarily ration itself so that there may be sufficient food for others," he stated in his morning sermon.

Mr. Fraser urged citizens to adopt a three-point plan to make secure the lives of less fortunate:

1. Encourage Congress to institute adequate controls and restrictions on all basic commodities.

2. Urge the repeal of margarine taxes which would release a nutritious butter substitute and at the same time reduce living costs.

3. To make known to our Congressmen our Christian convictions that we must feed the hungry, clothe the naked, minister to the sick and bring help to those in need.

Vice Squad Arrests 76 In Disorderly Party Raid

Police Break Into 18th St. Apartment At 1 A. M. Following Previous Complaint

Police surprised 76 men at a "disorderly" party early yesterday when they raided an apartment at 2323 18th st. nw.

The majority of the men, 48 of them, were service personnel and were turned over to military police and the shore patrol.

Of the 28 civilians, 27 were charged with disorderly conduct. All of them elected to forfeit collateral.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, led a raiding party of 18 men which included military police and the shore patrol.

Blick said that police received a complaint several weeks ago that such parties were being held in the 1600 block of 19th st. nw. For the past two weeks police have been watching that block at night.

Late Saturday night the police watchers saw a crowd of men gather in the block and move off to the 18th st. address. The police followed them.

Police finally broke into the apartment at 1 a. m. Blick said the "party" had not yet begun. He said it was a spacious apartment, consisting of two living rooms, three bedrooms, a kitchen and a large attic above the apartment.

Blick estimated that the raid would have netted more than a hundred men if a number of them, apparently suspecting that they were being watched, had not left.

All of the civilians were booked at Police Headquarters on the disorderly conduct charges. One, David Likes, 30, 1632 P st. nw., forfeited $5 collateral.

Those who elected to forfeit $10 collateral were:

Guy E. Shawen, 21, 3155 Mount Pleasant st. nw.; Thomas P. Scanlon, 29, 1706 19th st. ne.; Grant W. Higbie, 21, 4308 13th st. ne.; Jack Perkerson, 23, 1220 P st. nw.; Warren S. Hardesty, 26, 1834 Columbia rd. nw.; Ernest E. Huyett, 41, Richmond, Va.; John V. Anderson, 27, 200 Massachusetts ave. nw.; Franklin E. Winter, 27, and Raymond L. Quinn, 22, both of Silver Spring, Md.;

Mader, 21, New York City; William B. Gates, 20, 1740 R st. nw.; Richard E. Powell, 23, 1426 21st st. nw.; Rolfe C. Tainter, 27, Edward C. Babcock, 25, and Robert Lyon, 27, all of 2323 18th st. nw.;

Peretz W. Johnnes, 22, 1470 Chapin st. nw.; Elmer C. Rice, 21, 1424 Rhode Island ave. nw.; William D. Eppes, 29, and Charles M. Flander, 27, both of 921 19th st. nw.; Joses R. Conklin, 38, 1701 Massachusetts ave. nw.; John D. Sartor, 25, 1474 Chapin st. nw., and Paul R. Gallup, 31, 1722 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Torchlight Dice Game Stopped

Towson, Md., Sept. 21 (AP).—After a three-year search, Baltimore County police have caught up with a juvenile gambling center near Randallstown, Probation Officer Richard W. Wickes announced today.

Wickes said complaints of the gambling had been coming into his office for three years. It wasn't until police raided a secluded spot in a woods that they found about a dozen youths playing cards and dice, the probation official reported. He said the games were held at night, light coming from torches made of rags stuffed in kerosene jars.

The youths were released on probation by Juvenile Judge John B. Gontrum.

CORRECTION

A story in The Washington Post yesterday about a 20-block chase of two men in an allegedly stolen car listed one of the men as Stafford M. Boykin, 35, of 1619 L st. nw.

Residents of the L st. address informed The Washington Post that no one by the name "Stafford M. Boykin" lives at that address, although the address was obtained from police records. A subsequent check, however, revealed that Boykin, who was fined $250 and sentenced to 90 days in Municipal Court, has no permanent address. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 21.—Proposed construction of a new elementary school or a vocational arts building in conjunction with James Monroe High School will be discussed at a public hearing Tuesday night by the city council and school board at 8 o'clock at the James Monroe School.

The school board favors the vocational arts building, pointing out that the high school is in danger of losing its accredited rating unless more space is made available for science laboratories. With a view to swinging both the school board and council toward its way of thinking, parent-teacher associations are circulating petitions throughout the city, obtaining the names of persons who favor building a new elementary school now, and enlarging the vocational arts program later.

Cambridge, Md., Sept. 21 (AP).—Chairman Harold Applegarth of the local Chamber of Commerce Airport Committee said yesterday the committee would call on Governor Lane Monday in an effort to prevent loss of a $110,000 appropriation for a Cambridge airport.

"We are going to ask for $30,000 from the State to match a $30,000 appropriation available to the city and county," he said. He explained that under a $55,000 Federal grant for the purpose, the State must match local funds or the appropriation is lost.

Model Train Railway Fans, Observe . . .

The Washington Post

Larger-Scale Aid Asked for Europe's Jews

Baltimore, Sept. 21 (AP).—Private American aid "on an unprecedented scale" was urged today by Moses A. Leavitt to offset European crop shortages and inflation which threaten to intensify the suffering of Europe's 1,500,000 homeless and destitute Jewish survivors this coming winter.

Leavitt told 200 delegates attending the Maryland regional conference of the 170 million dollars United Jewish Appeal that such aid must be extended immediately to overcome the reduction in intergovernmental assistance. Leavitt is executive vice chairman of the United Jewish Appeal.

"The termination of UNRRA assistance," he declared, "and the drastic reduction of relief services by the International Refugee Organization leaves only the joint distribution committee, which together with the United Palestine Appeal and the United Service for New Americans is supported by the 170 million dollars United Jewish Appeal, to cope with a burden more overwhelming than any ever faced before by a voluntary relief agency."

Recently returned from a ten-week survey of Jewish displaced persons camps in Europe, Leavitt said he felt that Europe's Jews "have gained a foothold in the struggle back to normalcy and rehabilitation."

However, he said, "unless American Jewry lives up to the responsibility it has assumed through the 170 million dollars campaign of the United Jewish Appeal," the gloom and misery of the coming winter will be intensified for Europe's Jews.

Represented at the conference were 74 communities in Maryland, and representatives from Keyser and Romney in West Virginia, Exmore, Keller, Parksley and Onancock in Virginia and Delmar, Del.

150-Man Posse And Bloodhounds Trail 'Wild Man'

McIntosh, Minn., Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Alden Haugom, a "wildman" who lives on stolen peanut butter and wild berries, was sought today by bloodhounds and a 150-man posse angered by his terrorism of neighborhood farm women.

Haugom's coffin-like shelter was found in the woods. From it he emerges only to forage for food.

A terrifying figure with his unkempt beard, long disheveled hair and tattered clothes, the recluse has been ordered taken for a sanity test.

Haugom fled to the woods in 1944 after being released from psychiatric treatment.

His coffin-like box, covered with a blanket, contained a sack of wild berries and a half-filled jar of peanut butter.

Takoma Park Adventist Finds Sister Through 'Prayer' Ad

A Takoma Park Adventist professor's prayers to find a sister he had not seen for 25 years were answered this week—through a newspaper "ad."

Mr. Eckenroth

Elder Melvin K. Eckenroth, of 206 Hamilton st., Takoma Park, went to Philadelphia this week to lecture in Adventist churches. The sister, Mrs. Vincent J. O'Neal, was told of the "ad" by an aunt who noticed the similarity between Mrs. O'Neil's maiden name and that of Elder Eckenroth. Mrs. O'Neal contacted the brother whom she had not seen since she was 16 months' old when their parents' deaths separated them.

"We feel that the reunion is a direct answer to our prayer," said Eckenroth.

Mrs. O'Neal is now 27 and the wife of an instructor in fire fighting techniques at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. They have a 4½ year old son, Vincent, jr.

Elder Eckenroth is a teacher in the Adventist Theological Seminary.

Model Train Enthusiast Has $1000 Railroad in Basement

Probably every boy who ever owned model trains has said to himself: "Some day I'm going to have a train set built around a city as real as anything you ever saw."

George N. Adams kept on saying that for over 40 years, and the train layout he has completed after 14 months' effort and an expenditure of about $1000 is so detailed that the cemetery in his model village even has miniature tombstones—on them are names of people he doesn't like.

Adams, who is 47, a former real estate man, now employed in the insurance office of the Veterans' Administration here, says, "I've been playing around trains, or thinking, about them since I could walk." The train setup in the basement of his home at 909 S. St. Asaph st., Alexandria, displays that long concentration.

67 Cars, 427 Feet of Track

Running on 427 feet of track are 67 model cars, pulled by nine types of locomotives. Twenty-seven switches and numerous sidings enable seven engines to operate at once.

Chief Engineer Adams runs his show from a central control board that looks like a radar set. He pulls levers, turns knobs, sets dials as the trains tear off in all directions.

Every part of the project is scaled exactly at 3.5 mm. per foot. Adams buys the cars in "kits" and puts them together. They cost about $5 each. Engines cost up to $75. He travels considerably on his VA job, and sometimes spends his evenings in a hotel room assembling railroad cars.

Houses and Cemetery

He has tunnels, signal towers, water towers. He also has a complete village with houses that will soon be electrified, a coal yard full of small pieces of gravel, a stockyard filled with cattle.

Every time he "crosses someone off his list," he "buries" him in his village cemetery.

Some of his railroad cars bear the name "Santa Fe" or "Pullman." Others have bright orange tops, and are labeled "L. & G. Lines." This is his own railroad, named for grandchildren Lee and George Fetner of Hamlet, N. C., the offspring of Adams' only child. The village is named Leeville—George was born after the project got under way.

Because the tracks tend to get greasy, and since large parts of them are hard to get at for cleaning, Adams has built a track cleaning car. This is a little engine containing a small bottle of cleaning fluid and a piece of cloth weighted down to touch the track.

The train layout is on a 4-foot platform about 16 by 20 feet. Most of the rest of the basement is taken up with Adams' work bench, where he is now manufacturing a pickle car, complete with little barrels for pickles.

His wife keeps only space enough for a washing machine, and Adams is eying that area for purposes of expansion.

Honors in St. Mary's Jousting Taken by Clements, Md., Man

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 21.—A 25-year-old merchant from Clements, Md., was acclaimed yesterday the champion knight of St. Mary's County, Md.

At an old-fashioned jousting tournament closing the first St. Mary's County Fair here, Albert Anderson carried off first prizes in two of the three classes.

For winning top honors in the St. Mary's County group he received a crown and $10. Anderson also won $15 as first prize in the amateur class.

Phil Love, who is known as the "Knight of Prince Georges," took first place in the professional class.

Henry Fowler, Mechanicsville, Md., chairman of the tournament, estimated that nearly 5000 persons saw the jousting.

Heath Steele of Leonardtown, secretary of the fair association, said it would take several days for officials to complete tabulation of all the fair winners.

Tax Increase Opposed By Martinsburg Group

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 21.—A special tax committee here last night recommended that the city make no attempt to increase revenues through taxation at the present time.

The committee said it recognized the need for additional funds for city operating expenses, but stated that the expected need for expenditures for an expanded water supply should not be hampered by any other tax-raising attempts. Mayor Paul B. Martin, a member of the committee did not sign the report because of his belief that wages of city employes should be raised, he said.

Va. Polytech Builds Animal Disease Plant

Blacksburg, Va., Sept. 21 (Spl.).—A virus isolation laboratory is under construction at Virginia Polytechnic Institute for use in study of animal diseases.

The laboratory will form a permanent part of the group of buildings used by the animal pathology section, said Dr. H. N. Young, director of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station.

First occupants will be chickens used in research into Newcastle disease, a contagious respiratory and nervous poultry malady whose ravages are worrying Virginia poultrymen, according to Dr. E. P. Johnson, chief animal pathologist at the station.

Later, other animal diseases due to viruses will be studied.

The structure will contain eight rooms, four of which will be isolation chambers. The other four will include a preparation room, where workers' clothing can be changed and disinfected, a feed storage room, an inoculating room and a diffusion room for intake of fresh air.

The ventilating system is so arranged that as air passes from the isolation rooms it is subjected to filtration and ultra-violet rays before passing outside.

Nader of Washington, yesterday became the bride of Emile Joseph Hajjar, son of Joseph Hajjar of Methuen, Mass. The wedding took place in Foundry Methodist Church, with the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris and the Rev. John Israel officiating.

Escorted by her father, the bride was gowned in white satin and lace. Her lace-trimmed veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried an orchid circled by white roses and stephanotis.

After a honeymoon in New Hampshire, Mr. and Mrs. Hajjar will reside in Washington.

Your Questions On Homemaking

1. When I kept our everyday silver in a wooden drawer, frequent polishing was not necessary. However, we now have a metal cabinet, and the silver turns black a few days after I clean it. Can you tell me what is causing this and what can be done to remedy it?

2. Can you tell me how to freshen our studio couch? It smells of perspiration odor, especially on hot days. P. H. M.

1. It seems likely that it's the recent damp weather, rather than the metal drawer, that's making your silver tarnish so fast. Buy a piece of block camphor at the drug store and put it in the drawer with the silver. That will keep the atmosphere drier there and help retard tarnishing.

2. A thorough cleaning with an upholstery shampoo and a good sunning are the best means of ridding your sofa of the perspiration odor.

Could you tell me what foods I could prepare that would keep long enough to get to Richmond by mail or express? A friend is in the Home for Incurables there and her diet is not limited. I would like to know what foods could be packed in glass jars, or wrapped in waxed paper, to be shipped. They might be in transit as long as three days. My idea is to send a box a week that will furnish one complete meal and probably supplement one or two others. M. W. L.

There are many canned things you can send your friend—soups, baked beans, vegetables, meats, fruits and fruit juices, Boston brown bread, date nut bread, puddings, sandwich spreads, jellies, jams, and pickles. If you have a steam-pressure canner, you can put up a variety of home-cooked foods to send her—stews, spaghetti and similar dishes. Of course, she'd have to have some place to heat these. Other foods you might send with little danger of spoilage are: cheese; bologna and other heavily spiced or smoked meats; crackers, beaten biscuit, nuts, dates, dried figs, packages of rolls, bread or cake, if carefully packed, apples, pears and other fruit. These are just a few suggestions. You'll undoubtedly find many other things to send in the stores. To be avoided are such things as jars of custard, potato salad, and the like which spoil very quickly when not under refrigeration.

Can you give me a recipe for Sunshine Silver pie? R. F.

Sorry, but I haven't a recipe for this pie. Wonder if any of you readers can supply this information?

Can you suggest some simple filing system for future reference for the hints you give in your column and other household information? F. R. D.

Loose leaf notebooks make ready reference books. You can choose the books to fit the kitchen shelf or space where you want to keep them handy. Clippings can be pasted to the sheets in the notebook and sections of the book may be indexed. Thus you might have "spot removing" as a section for several pages of clippings, "ironing and laundry hints" for another, or classify your notebook to suit your own convenience. When your notebook becomes too crowded, you can transfer sections of the loose sheets to another note book and thus increase your library of reference materials.

Manila folders or envelopes are also used for keeping clippings for references. However, this is not too satisfactory as clippings become frayed when placed loosely in the folders.

Platform Shoes No New Fad

Platform shoes, whose cushioned comfort has made them a permanent feature in American shoe design, have had a long and varied career. English and Italian women in the sixteenth century wore them. But theirs were a foot high. In Asiatic countries women have worn them for generations, though their platforms are mostly dressed-up clogs. As in Europe, such footwear helped to keep dainty feet out of the mud.

Shoe manufacturers attribute the continued popularity of the platforms to the fact that they add height gracefully while retaining the flexible comfort of leather shoes.

For Cleaning Rugs

To remove tar, road oil or asphalt from rugs use cleaning fluid (a grease solvent). First remove all black possible with a dull knife. Then sponge with the cleaning fluid, using a light brushing motion.

Erasing Stains

To remove copper, brass, tin or other metal stains from fabrics, textile chemists advise using a mild acid such as vinegar, lemon juice or a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid. Rinse as soon as the stain has dissolved.

Attractive Marking

An easy marking for the new sheet is to cross-stitch one initial just below the wide hem in a deep shade of blue or rose. It will take only a few minutes and will look so much prettier than a taped initial.

Shoulder Pad Trick

To save time and trouble with shoulder pads make them removable. Instead of sewing them in, attach them with small-sized snaps. You can then take pads out when you launder your clothes or have them cleaned and snap them in again just before wearing. Dresses pack more easily and fold more smoothly without them, saving space in suitcases for travel.

Sewing Idea

If you've groaned over a skirt band that stretches even before you put it on the skirt, here's a remedy local sewing center experts suggest: Stretch the band taut, and pin it down to the ironing board securely at both ends. Then use a damp cloth and steam the band. It should fit the skirt.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl and Man, in Latter Twenties, Plan Their Vacations to Coincide; Intend to Sojourn at Same Hotel; Girl's Parents Are Up in Arms

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Robert is 28, I am 26 and we have known each other for two years. Although not engaged, we are the best of friends and I have found him to be a fine companion, always considerate.

We are planning to take our vacations at the same time this fall and stay at the same hotel: but my parents are raising a great fuss about this. Mother insists on a chaperone while father refuses to countenance the idea in any form.

I think they are being absurdly stuffy. I claim that no one in this day and age would criticize us. Please let me know your opinion.
G. C.

Girl Doesn't Know the World

DEAR G. C.: In my opinion, 70 per cent of the people you know would criticize, smirk and/or wisecrack—if not to your face then behind your back—if you were to proceed with the plan you have in mind.

We haven't reached the millennium yet, which means that we haven't arrived at a day and age when mankind is blessedly free of cynical distrust of human nature.

Humanity is still a long way off from that perfect purity of heart which would enable individuals to live tranquilly above the so-called rules of propriety; hence I think your parents' attitude is quite realistic for this twentieth century.
M. H.

Man's Frivolity Distresses Wife

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Dan and I have been happily married for nearly three years and usually we agree on matters of importance. However, for several months he has persisted in a course of action which I thoroughly disapprove. He calls it harmless.

He plays shuffle board in a local tavern with two unmarried girls whose father tends bar there. He even teases me about one of the girls, although he vows it's all quite innocent.

We have two babies and I'm kept busy most of the time; but when I have time to sit and think I get terribly uneasy about the whole thing. Am I foolish to worry about this recent practise of his? Should a wife condone it? Or do you, too, think it's wrong?

If you think it's wrong, can you please offer suggestions as to how I can either put a stop to it or develop peace of mind? N. D.

Stop Brooding; Turn to Prayer

DEAR N. D.: Of course, your husband's practise is wrong and well he knows it.

Instead of hanging out at a tavern, loafing away his leisure with unmarried girls, he should be devoting that time to his family, helping around the house, lending a hand with the babies, getting acquainted with them, sharing recreational activities with you, etc.,—thereby making the marriage a meaningful relationship and discovering true enjoyment of life.

Rudeness, from mother and child, is the subject of Mary Haworth's letter of advice tomorrow.

DAR Increases School Funds In Mountains

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP).—Increases in scholarship funds for two Southern mountain schools can be expected from the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Bryne, president general, said today.

Mrs. O'Byrne said in a statement the Kate Duncan Smith School on Gunter Mountain, Ala., and the Tamassee School of South Carolina, will be filled to capacity this season "as children of the mountain folk of the Appalachian regions trek back to school more eager than ever."

In addition she said under the increasingly important DAR educational program "liberal aid will be extended 14 approved schools on the DAR list."

These include American International College, Springfield, Mass.; Berea College, Berea, Ky.; Berry Schools and Colleges, Mount Berry, Ga.; Blue Ridge School, Bristol, Va.; Carr Creek Community Center, Carr Creek, Ky.; Crossnore School, Crossnore, N. C.; Hillside School, Marlborough, Mass.; Hindman Settlement School, Hindman, Ky.; Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn.; Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn.; Northland College, Ashland Wis., and Pine Mountain Settlement School, Pine Mountain, Ky.

Oldest Daily On Md. Shore Ends 50 Years

Cambridge, Md., Sept. 21 (AP).—The Daily Banner, oldest daily publication on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary today.

This week has been designated as 50th Anniversary Week, and historical sketches and special stories will be published each day in the Cambridge newspaper, owned and published by Arnold Daane.

Actually, September 21 was to have been the date for the first newspaper, but the press refused to "turn over" and the paper's debut was postponed until the following afternoon.

Founding editors were Lindsay C. Marshall and Armistead R. Michie, who had started the Banner as a weekly in Warrenton, Va. Becoming dissatified, they moved to Cambridge and began a daily.

At that time, it was a four-page, six-column publication; today it is eight columns wide and varies from six to 16 pages daily.

In 1910 the Marshall-Michie interests were purchased by P. Watson Webb, who was publishing the Cambridge Record, a tri-weekly Dorchester County paper. Webb, now a member of the State Roads Commission, sold the Banner in February, 1940, to Daane, who came here from Washington, D. C., where he was associated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Prior to that time, Daane was copublisher of a weekly and daily paper in Austin, Minn., and was an editorial writer for the Pioneer Press, St. Paul, Minn.

Managing editor of the Banner is Miss Elsie McNamara, who has been on the editorial staff since September, 1926.

The Banner is 26 years older than the Salisbury Times, only other daily publication on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

School Funds Disputed in West Virginia

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 21.—An assertion by State Superintendent of Schools W. W. Trent this week that seven counties in West Virginia will not have sufficient funds for nine months of school was disputed today by Berkeley County Schools Superintnedent G. William Ropp.

Ropp, who served s chairman of the group which prepared the finance formula adopted by the 1947 Legislature to coyer State aid to the schools, said "Dr. Trent is not on too solid ground in raising the point of inadequate school support.

"His own recommendation, contained in the thirty-seventh biennial report of the State superintendent of schools," said Ropp, "called for an increase in State aid to schools of $8,300,000 for the present year. The plan developed by the formula committee and approved by the Legislature provides for an increase of 14 million dollars, or 68 per cent more than that recommended by Dr. Trent.

"If any county is having difficulty," said Ropp, "it may get some consolation by comparing its present situation with the condition in which it would have been had Dr. Trent's recommendations prevailed."

Trent listed seven counties which, he said, would have difficulty. These included Hardy, Grant and Pendleton in this eastern area.

Ropp said, "A check with Hardy and Grant elicts the information that they are in the best financial condition they have been since the advent of the county unit. I understand that the third, Pendleton, expects to operate a nine-months term and at the same time pay off a deficit which has accumulated during the past year. The other four counties all received substantial increases in State aid."

Enrollment Sets Mark

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Sept. 21. Enrollment at Shepherd College here breaks a record this term, Dr. W. H. S. White, president, said today.

The total is 386, with 48 additional students taking night classes. The previous enrollment high for the full year was in 1932, when 341 were listed. Of the total, 247 are men, 160 of them veterans and 139 women. Of the veterans, 46 are married.

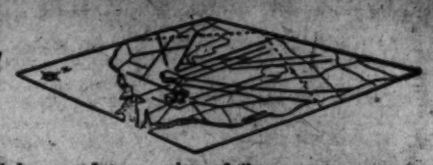
THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Do You Suppose the Vice Squad Will Investigate?



Sol Panitz of 4309 Kentbury dr., Bethesda, Md., takes time off from his radio writing to compose a tongue-in-cheek postcard:

"I was driving into Bethesda with my 3-year-old daughter last night. At the 'Call Carl' station, the neon lights had gone haywire. 'Call Carl' was blacked out, and the 'Service' sign beneath had also been affected.

"In lurid green, the only thing visible was 'Vice.'

"I covered my little girl's eyes, and pondered the situation sadly, all the way home."

TIP

Poetically inclined District Liners are reminded that Gromyko rhymes with yeto.

CORRESPONDENCE DEPT.

The following letter has been received from D. M. Brinton of 610 N. Dinwiddie st., Arlington, Va.:

"Mr. H. G. Miller asks why there isn't a weather vane in Washington.

"Permit me to suggest that he look atop the National Savings & Trust Co. building at 15th and New York ave., three blocks from where Mr. Miller resides.

D. M. Brinton.

"P. S. I suffer with your column six days a week."

So do I. Let's get together some time and compare notes.

RECRUIT

Dot Prince of 1723 P st. nw., pinpoints another weather vane for District Liner Miller. She writes:

"This one is on the All Souls Unitarian Church at 16th and Harvard—the church where last Sunday Dr. Davies made headlines by more or less joining the Lizzy Stone League."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

A laundryman who will remain anonymous to preserve his friendly relations with his customers wonders:

"Was there ever a lost or damaged shirt that had been worn more than twice? Was there ever a sheet or spread that wasn't the customer's very finest? And was there ever a customer who frankly admitted that the rip was there before the article went to the laundry? I'm just wondering."

PUBLICITY STUNT

They say that P. T. Barnum inspired the creation of animal crackers to publicize his circus.

Now American Airlines is copying the stunt with a product called Flagship Cookies. Like animal crackers, they're baked by the original NBC (National Biscuit Co.).

They're made in the form of planes, pilots, hangars, and such, and will be served to passengers on American's flagships. In addition, they'll be sold in grocery stores.

REPLY

The other day we used a "pet peeve" submitted by Elizabeth Sharp Riley of 1861 Wyoming ave. nw. Mrs. Riley was kicking about "bell happy motormen" on our local streetcars.

Shortly after the item appeared, Mrs. Riley got a letter from D. B. Wills, special assistant to the president of Capital Transit Co.

Wills pointed out that streetcar gongs were sounded to warn other vehicles and pedestrains and thereby avert accidents; also to clear the tracks of vehicles which might be delaying the progress of streetcars.

But then he added: "We fully agree with your criticism of the excessive use of the gong. On our newer cars we are getting gongs with a less objectionable sound—we might even say a pleasing sound—to reduce the extent of the annoyance caused."

INFORMATION, PLEASE

J. William Drach of 2040 N. Vermont st., Arlington, Va., needs some help. He writes:

"Do the District Liners know where I can get some colored linen picture books, suitable for a small child?

"I have a daughter who is just the right age for such books, but I can't find them in our local stores."

Janie Cowgill of Bowie, Md., says her cat Grayson III tops any feline we've mentioned so far.

He stands on his hind legs and, using his front paws, somehow manages to open the back screen door.

"Is there another cat who can open doors?" challenges Janie.

Well, no. But a girl named Myrtle, who lives in a comic strip on the next page, has a dog named Bingo who has been opening doors for some time.

Costello Commits a 'Murder' a Day

NEW YORK.—Frank Costello sat with two newspapermen who made some reference to the news stories which constantly are being published about him. They reminded Costello that his activities are newsworthy. "Why? Just because I commit murder?" said Costello. "That's the reason. The murders I commit"... The newspapermen blinked and asked: "Murder?"... "Sure. I commit a murder a day," Costello told them, "but only of the King's English."

MISTAKE: Robert Ruark, the columnist and author of the forthcoming book, "Grenadine Etchings," hits hard not only with his typewriter but also with his fists. When Ruark was a sportswriter in Washington he once had a fist fight with Bobo Newsom, the big pitcher, and was reported to have knocked Newsom down twice . . . Collier's is about to publish an article about Ruark, and a check was made on this fight story, for possible use in the piece. A phone call was put through to Newsom, who was asked: "Is it true that you had a fight with Bob Ruark and he knocked you down twice?" . . . "Aw, 'twas nothin'," replied Newsom. "Bob and I got together later and we both agreed to forget it. It never should have happened—especially to me."

MUSIC: Gregor Piatigorsky, the cellist, has been anxious to do some more movie work, as a follow-up to his appearance in "Carnegie Hall." Piatigorsky is not unmindful of the new careers which the motion picture camera brought to Iturbi and Stokowski . . . He received an offer of a film contract which would have brought him a high fee. But, as an artist, he rejected it, for the offer was to play "The Flight of the Bumble Bee" on his cello, as a dub-in for Danny Kaye, who would pretend to be playing it with his lips.

LOVE: Jacques Peals was in Cafe Society Uptown last night, watching the performance of his wife, Lucienne Boyer. Ella Logan asked him: "What's another French word for 'Love,' besides 'amour'? . . . "To a Frenchman," replied Peals, 'love is not a word. It's a program."

CHATTER: Benjamin V. Cohen, who recently resigned as counselor at the State Department after 14 years in the service of the Government, will rejoin his former partner, Tommy Corcoran, in the private practice of law on October 1.

Justice Douglas isn't expected back in Washington in time for the opening of court. He needs two more weeks of recuperation after his recent operation . . . Richard Strauss has written a new opera, "The Loves of Danae." Rodzinski may give a performance of it in Chicago . . . Some of Taft's adherents say that the Republican Party can't start mending its fences because Tom Dewey is sitting on all of them.

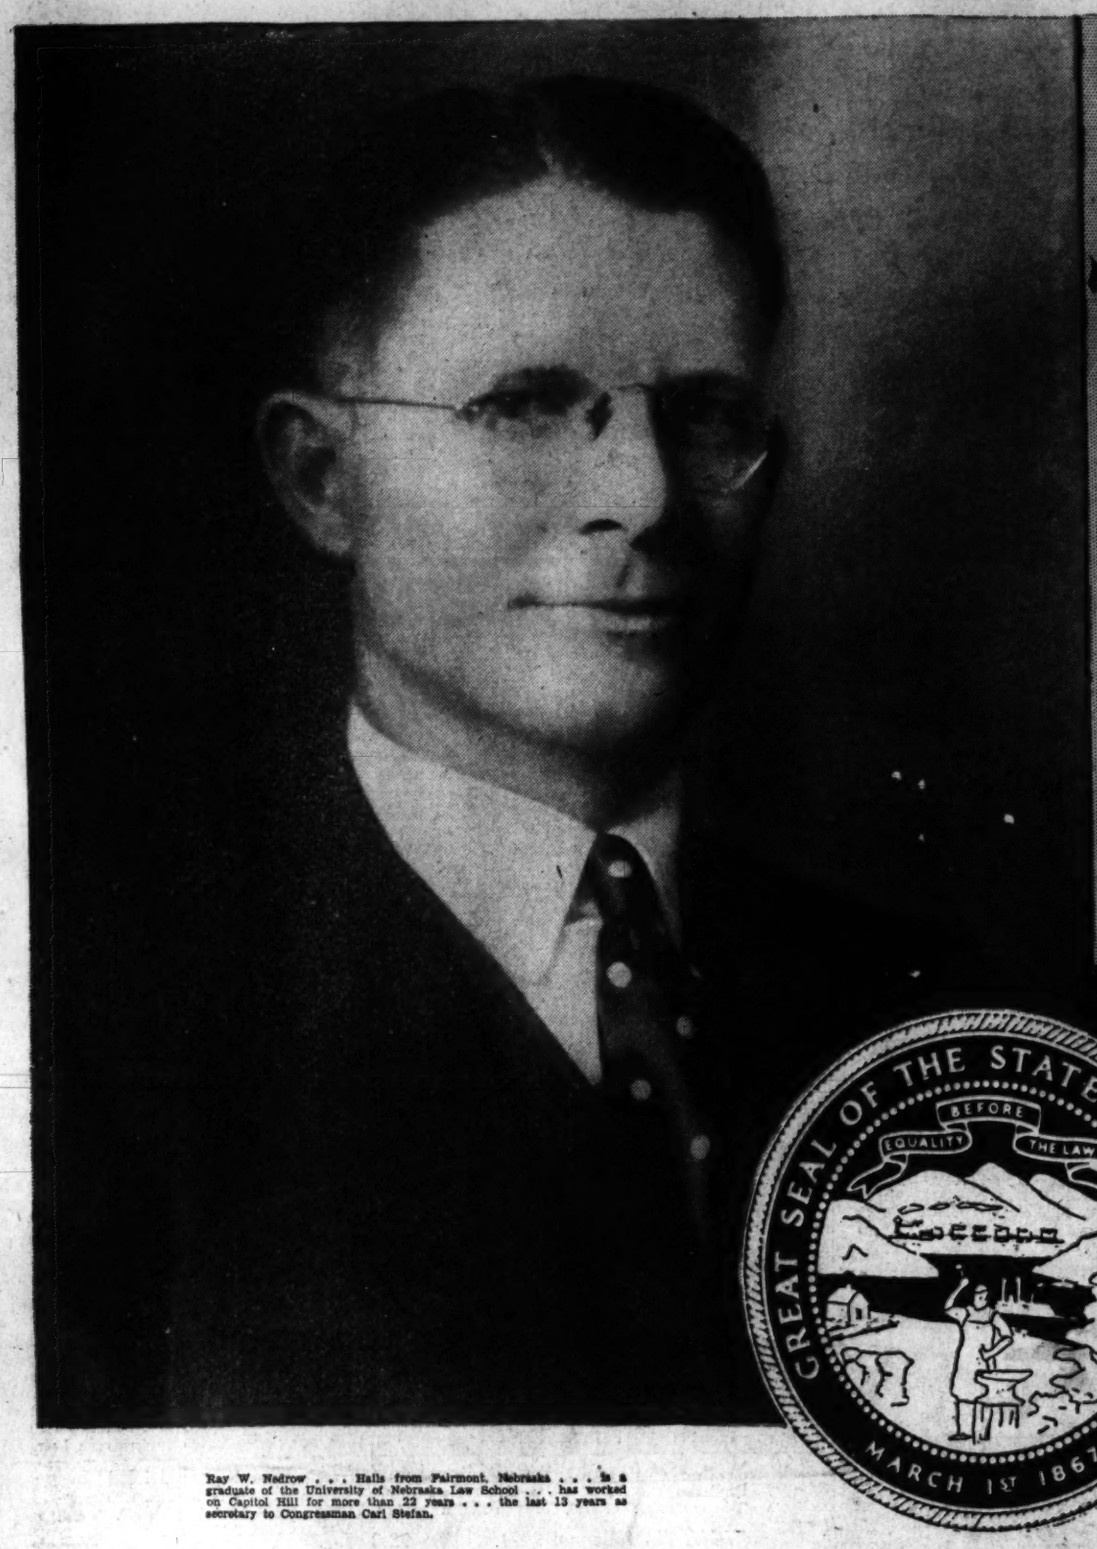
A GREAT STORE IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL



Ray W. Nedrow . . . Hails from Fairmont, Nebraska . . . is a graduate of the University of Nebraska Law School . . . has worked on Capitol Hill for more than 22 years . . . the last 13 years as secretary to Congressman Carl Stefan.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

NEBRASKA . . . the cornhusker state

Nebraska was settled by homesteaders. The first homesteader in America staked his claim for land in Gage County in 1863 . . . the forerunner of hardy pioneers with strength, courage and endurance . . . who came not to take quick wealth from the State, but to build homes, churches and schools, and develop Nebraska's tremendous potentialities for agriculture. Cornhuskers are hard-working, industrious people who love their land . . . and their persistent and assiduous application to farming has made Nebraska great. The majority of our people are actively engaged in agricultural pursuits . . . and our biggest industries are based on products of our deep and fertile soil. Nebraska is making a fine contribution to world peace in supplying quantities of foodstuffs to alleviate starvation and suffering all over the world. We are happy to be able to send our greetings to fellow Washingtonians, through this courtesy of The Hecht Company, and to tell the story of the people who are Nebraskans. The thrifty character of the Nebraskan is demonstrated by the Pay-as-You-Go system by which we run our State Government. Nebraskans take great interest in good government and firmly adhere to the principle inscribed on the portals of our beautiful State Capitol building—"The Salvation of the State is the Watchfulness of the Citizens."

Ray W. Nedrow

President, Nebraska State Society

● NEBRASKA . . . Commemorated 80 years of Statehood in March of this year. The State Capitol, one of the most beautiful buildings of modern times, towers high above the Nebraska prairie, a majestic sky-scraper . . . with its gold-tiled dome crowned with the statue of the "Sower," symbolizing Nebraska's agricultural dominance.

● NEBRASKA . . . Once the floor of an inland sea . . . now a Sea of Yellow Grain. Nebraska's principal crop is corn . . . she is second in the country in rye production . . . third in wheat . . . fifth in barley . . . seventh in oats . . . first in wild hay . . . and has 200 varieties of native grass. The State is one of the world's largest producers of dry beans. Also grows potatoes, sugar beets, sorghums, soy beans . . . and has a sizable hog and cattle industry—Cherry County is one of the largest cattle growing counties in the Nation. The total of these products rates Nebraska sixth in U. S. production of all foodstuffs. Nebraska farms average 191 acres in size . . . more than twice the average for the country as a whole . . . and have 61 per cent more mechanization than the average U. S. farm.

● NEBRASKA . . . Whose major industries utilize her enormous agricultural output. Omaha is one of the greatest stockyard and meat packing centers in the Nation. Nebraska is also a large miller of flour. Her factories turn out freight cars, brick and tile. Oil was discovered in the State in 1939 . . . 20 wells now produce 50 million barrels of oil annually.

● NEBRASKA . . . In pioneer days crossed by the Mormon and Oregon Trails . . . and the Pony Express . . . now claims the Nation's fourth largest rail terminal, at Omaha . . . and the longest, straightest street in the world, "O" Street in Lincoln, which runs 69 miles out of town without a turn.

● NEBRASKA . . . With its grass-covered prairies undulating like the swells of an ocean . . . rising to the pine studded hills of the pine-ridge country in the foothills of the Rockies. Nebraska is traversed by many rivers, among the largest of which are the Platte, so smooth it is sometimes described as flowing bottom side up . . . the Niobrara . . . the Republican . . . the Elkhorn . . . the Loup . . . and the Big Blue.

● NEBRASKA . . . Where Charles G. Dawes, former Vice-President of the United States, launched his career . . . home of William Jennings Bryan, the "Boy Orator of the Platte" . . . Thurlow Lieurance, composer of "By the Waters of Minnetonka" . . . Howard Hanson, contemporary composer of symphonies and choral works . . . and J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor Day. Nebraskans are immortalized in literature in the works of many writers . . . with Willa Cather and Bess Streeter Aldrich among the most outstanding.
